MANY ISSUES CLAIM INTEREST AS FIVE STATES OPEN POLLS

Norris Battle Most Important Due To Federal Import

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The presidential race of 1928, prohibition, the world court, the power trust and local affairs were at issue today as the voters of Alabama, Arkansas, Nebraska, Ohio and Oklahoma, went to the polls to choose party candidates in state-wide primaries.

The outcome of senatorial contests in Nebraska and Arkansas may have far-reaching influence upon future federal legislation. In Nebraska, Senator George W. Norris (R), the veteran insurgent leader, seeks renomination, while in Arkansas, Senator Joe T. Robinson (D) minority leader of the senate, asks another term.

In Nebraska, the old guard Republicans have fought Norris for his insurgency, for his world court vote, and chiefly, for his bolt to Alfred E. Smith in 1928. A victory for Norris will solidify and encourage the western progressive group in the senate which has opposed administration programs for many years. His retirement would cripple this group and rob the insurgents of their leader.

In Arkansas, Robinson has strong opposition for the first time in his career. His opponent, Tom J. Campbell, an attorney, has sought Robinson's defeat because of his candidacy as vice presidential nominee on the Smith ticket two years ago, his vote for the world court and his participation in drafting the London naval treaty.

Robinson is defeated under these circumstances, it might well change the course of the Democratic party on international issues. In Alabama, Senator Tom J. Heflin stands on the sidelines barred from the primary while others fight for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Heflin will run as an independent in November. In the meantime, Frederick I. Thompson, mobile publisher and John H. Bankhead, son of the former senator, vie for the honor of opposing him. The chief issue in

MYSTERY FLAMES BURN TWO HOUSES

DELAWARE, O., Aug. 12.—Authorities today were attempting to determine the cause of a fire yesterday afternoon which destroyed the homes of two farmers living near Lewis Center, south of here, and caused $50,000 damage.

The blaze originated in a barn on the farm of W. P. Whittier. The flames quickly enveloped the house and several other buildings. Pieces of burning shingles were carried a quarter of a mile by the wind to the home of Wade Burke, and within a short time his home and all buildings near the house had been burned to the ground. Several small field fires were started by flying sparks but they were extinguished without great loss. Several heads of cattle and pigs and valuable farm machinery were destroyed by the two conflagrations.

GRAND JURY HEARS CARROLL EVIDENCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The grand jury was scheduled today to hear evidence against Earl Carroll and three members of the cast in his current Broadway production. They are charged with giving an objectionable performance. James P. Sinnott, deputy police commissioner, and Acting Captain James Coy, police censor, who conducted a raid on the show, were expected to be the chief witnesses. Carroll, as well as Faith Bacon and Kay Carroll, two young women in the cast, and Jimmy Savo, comedian, have asked that the jurors hear their versions but whether they will be called was not certain. Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings intimated that possibly only the police officers would be questioned.

MYSTERY DEATH

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Oliver Glenn Leach, wealthy president of a lumber and real estate company, was found shot to death today in his apartment at the Belmont Hotel. Police were unable to determine on a preliminary examination whether the death was a murder or suicide.

PLAY SILENTLY

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—If you must play in the wee small hours, don't call your shots. That was the edict of health commissioner Wynne today on miniature golf players. In the wake of many complaints that early morning noises on the Tom Thumb courses disturbed sleep, the commissioner ordered that courses might be kept open during the night but quiet must be maintained after 11 o'clock.

GRASS AND TIMBER SWEEP BY FLAMES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12.—The prolonged drought, which has caused considerable damage to crops in this vicinity, today had resulted in the destruction of 160 acres of grass and timber land, which caught fire late yesterday, endangering homes and lives. The fires occurred in Cleveland Heights and Dover Center where the grass and timber had become parched and tinder-dry as a result of the lack of rain. Three companies of firemen were necessary to prevent the spread of the flames to residences in the Cleveland Heights blaze.

Rain continued to be lacking as the mercury in Cleveland and vicinity dropped to new low levels for the month. The lowest point reached yesterday was 59 degrees, 12 below normal. The highest point was 67 degrees.

LINDBERGH IN AIR

TO RESUME STEEL MERGER CASE; RECESS WAS CAUSED BY DEATH

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 12.—Trial of the billion-dollar lawsuit over the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. with Bethlehem Steel Corporation was to be resumed in common pleas court here today following its suspension Monday for the funeral of Myron C. Wick, Jr., co-plaintiff in the case. Bethlehem attorneys were expected to renew their attacks against the contention of Haskell Tipton of Ernst and Ernst, anti-merger accountants, that the terms of the Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem merger are unfair to Sheet and

COOL WEATHER WILL BRING RAINS AFTER CHANGE IS OPINION

Hope Drought Ended; Temperature Ends Destruction

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Hope that the damaging drought of the past few weeks in the Middle West would soon be broken was seen today in the continuation of unseasonably cool weather which definitely ended the heat wave. Weather experts pointed out that a return to normal summer warmth, inevitable at this season of the year, probably would be accompanied by sufficient rainfall to relieve the long dry spell and prevent further losses to farmers and stock men.

Forest fires, continuing today in northern Michigan and Wisconsin, added to the drought damage. Fire wardens, leading hundreds of men in an up-hill battle against these blazes, said the fires would burn until rain fell on the parched woodlands. No immediate rains were forecast for the region.

Lower temperatures and increasing humidity appeared today to have checked crop destruction in the corn belt, and many millions of acres remain to be saved by the expected rainfall.

The forecast of the U. S. weather bureau in Chicago for today and tomorrow was increasing cloudiness, "with probability of scattered showers, mostly light, over the plains states Tuesday, spreading eastward over the upper and middle Mississippi valleys on Wednesday." No important temperature changes were predicted.

In Chicago yesterday the mercury fell to 62 degrees, and the maximum was 70. On Saturday the temperature was 90. Similar reductions were reported from Mississippi, Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky, where 100 degrees was exceeded last week.

Tube stockholders. A. E. Ernst, head of Ernst and Ernst, will probably follow Tipton to the witness stand as an anti-merger witness. It was anticipated that he would corroborate and elaborate upon the testimony of Tipton, who declared last week that a "fair merger contract" would have been an exchange of 1.75 shares of Bethlehem for one share of Sheet and Tube, instead of the approved ratio of one and one-third for one. Present indications are that the trial of the spectacular injunction suit will not be concluded before Labor Day.

SIX BANDITS STEAL TRUCK LOADED WITH POULTRY AND EGGS

Hi-Jackers Bind Two And Escape With $2,500 Loot

ELYRIA, O., Aug. 12.—Working with methodical swiftness, six highway robbers today held up a Cleveland poultry dealer and his assistant near here and escaped with a three-ton truck loaded with $2,500 worth of poultry and eggs.

The victims of the robbery, Morris Drucker, 33, of Cleveland, and his assistant, Joseph Winfield, 27, of Cleveland, were bound and gagged and left lying on the road.

Drucker and Winfield were enroute from Findlay to Cleveland at the time of the holdup.

Drucker told authorities that he was stopped by a man in the road waving a red lantern. Two armed men, he said, jumped from the roadside and leaped on the running board of the truck.

The bandits hauled the two men from the cab of the truck and after binding them, drove off in the truck. One of the bandits, Drucker said, followed in a touring car which they had parked alongside the road.

Authorities said they believed the robbers may have been a gang of Cleveland whiskey hi-jackers who have turned to hi-jacking fruit and poultry as "a side-line."

A search warrant was being served on this section of the state for the bandits by Sheriff Clarence Adams of Lorain County. Watch was being concentrated over small towns where the hi-jackers might attempt to dispose of their loot.

PRESIDENT'S TRIP ABANDONED RESULT OF DROUGHT RELIEF

Situation Results In Decision To Cancel Plans

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Because he was determined to continue personal direction of drought relief, President Hoover much-discussed trip to the National Parks of the Rocky Mountain region is about to be publicly abandoned. For weeks, the executive has been juggling the advisability of making the vacation jaunt—political aspects being the factor which delayed the final decision.

The crisis in twelve states where crops have failed and farmers face the prospect of calling upon the Red Cross for personal relief this fall and winter, however, definitely has cast the die against the trip.

Mr. Hoover built his reputation on relief work, first in China, later in Belgium, as food administrator, and, more recently, in the Mississippi flood area. It is work at which he has proven himself peculiarly adept, and he feels he would remit in his duties to the nation as president if he departed on an extended pleasure trip while such an emergency as the President drought presents existed. He will remain in, or close to Washington and take personal charge of the government's efforts to afford the stricken sections succor.

There is even a likelihood the president may make at least a partial inspection of the drought area if conditions continue to grow worse. He has made no plans to do this so far, but when he took over flood relief in 1927 as secretary of commerce under President Coolidge, he made innumerable trips to the Mississippi and spent many weeks at the scene of actual suffering. This has been his policy whenever he has taken over such work.

Many of those close to him predicted Mr. Hoover would go no farther away from Washington than his mountain camp on the Rapidan River. Here, he could even remain ten days or two weeks and still be in closest touch with the situation. He has instant telephone communication with the White House and all government departments, and it is only a matter of several hours' motor ride for any of his aides to reach there with personal reports.

AMPLE FOOD SUPPLY BUT CITY DWELLERS FACE HIGHER COSTS

This Problem Facing Hoover In Relief From Drought

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The nation's supply of human food is ample for the fall and winter but city dwellers may pay more for it.

There is enough feed for livestock if properly distributed, but farmers in several states face ruin and relief appears necessary to prevent actual physical suffering.

This was the situation confronting President Hoover and his advisors today as the chief executive prepared for a conference of governors on Thursday and a meeting with heads of national farm organizations a day later.

There was sharp disagreement among the president's advisers and official agencies over the seriousness of the prolonged dry spell. With prices of good mounting in New York and other cities, the department of agriculture hurried to assure the country that the combined production of human food will be near the average of the last five years.

At the same time, Chairman John Barton Payne of the Red Cross had presented a pessimistic report from state chapter heads which indicated relief must be afforded in nine or ten states to prevent privation.

Though Secretary of Agriculture Lyde said on Saturday that every man, woman and child in the country would feel the consequences of the drought, other advisers of the president held the chief damage would be confined to a few states.

Vice-chairman James C. Stone of the federal farm board said the worst feature of the situation is "psychological."

"Many people have lost hope, when they should not," he said. "If we could have a good soaking rain for twenty-four hours, the picture would not look so bad."

The farm board is pinning much hope upon the feeding of wheat to replace corn and oats. The entire wheat crop is forecast at $21,000,000 bushels, which is 1.8 per cent above the 1929 crop. With a big surplus of wheat already on hand, diversion of 100,000,000 bushels to feeding livestock would do much to right the agricultural situation, board members say.

The corn crop, however, has been dealt a heavy blow by the drought. The indicated production on August 1, according to the department of agriculture, is 2,212,000,000 bushels, lowest since 1901. A further decrease of 100,000,000 bushels has taken place since Aug. 1, it was estimated.

Crop prospects for the nation as a whole, however, declined but seven per cent in July, according to estimates.

FIRE FORCES FIFTY TO LEAVE BUILDING

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12.—Fifty persons were forced into the street here today when a three-alarm fire swept the four-story Rutherglen Apartments in west Cleveland and caused slight damage to adjacent structures. The blaze was believed to have started in a paper chute on the top story of the apartment. Firemen were able to salvage only a little furniture from the upper floors of the building.

ATTEMPTS RESCUE; SEVERELY STABBED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12.—Thomas Halek, of Painesville, was reported to be in a serious condition in Lakeside Hospital today, suffering from a knife wound which he received while attempting to aid an intoxicated man he saw being robbed last night. One of the robbers stabbed Halek with a pocket knife, the victim told police. Halek was wounded in the abdomen.

ANNOUNCE RETURNS BY PUBLIC ADDRESS SYSTEM ON TUESDAY

Everyone Invited To Attend Broadcast; Starts At 7:30

The Gazette's election night radio party, a popular custom since its inauguration by this paper a dozen years ago, will be revived for Tuesday night's primary election returns.

A brand-new and improved system of broadcasting, however, will replace that used in other years.

Tonight the new Public Address System, recently purchased by the Gazette for news broadcasts, and used for the first time at the county fair last week, where it was extremely popular, will be employed to broadcast election returns.

The system consists of a sixteen-tube amplifying system, connected with three huge speakers. These speakers will be placed in three windows in the front of the Gazette Bldg., directly over the business office of The Gazette, facing Detroit Street.

Crowds on the sidewalks or in the street within a block of the building, will be able to hear the broadcast information easily in all directions, it is believed. Returns on the state primary contests of both parties will be broadcast direct from the office of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, picked up and amplified by the system here and given to the election crowd through the huge loud-speakers.

At thirty minute intervals when the state returns are not being given, returns from the Greene County vote, tallied and tabulated in the Gazette editorial department, will be put on the air for the crowd by means of a microphone in the editor's office. When 20 returns are available the program of one of the regular radio stations will be used over the system to keep the crowd in a good humor.

This mammoth new Public Address System of the Gazette's is in charge of and operated by Harry Hagler, radio expert of near Xenia and the system was thoroughly tested as a means of making public out-door announcements during the fair last week. It is believed it will prove to be the most satisfactory system for announcing election returns ever employed here.

Immediately following the closing of giving election returns here tonight, the equipment will be dismantled and taken to Washington C. H. where Mr. Hagler will install and operate it for the Fayette County Fair Board at its fair starting Wednesday. Following the Fayette County Fair the equipment will go to London where the Madison County Fair Board has employed it for next week.

The election party tonight starts as soon as the first returns are available, which will probably be about 7:30 o'clock, and will continue as long as any interesting contests are in doubt.

FILM STAR PLEADS FOR AUTO THIEF

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12.—Despite the tears of Maureen O'Sullivan, young Irish film star, Harry O. Billhart, who took her automobile without her consent, today was under sentence of one to five years in Folsom Penitentiary.

After Miss O'Sullivan tearfully begged a jury not to send young Billhart to the penitentiary, the jurors acquitted him of a charge of stealing the car, but found him guilty of taking it without permission. Superior Judge Miller imposed the penitentiary sentence.

JACKSON AND O'BRIEN WITHIN ONE DAY OF REGAINING CROWN

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 12.—Dale "Red" Jackson and Forrest O'Brien, seeking in their monoplane "Greater St. Louis" to recapture the refueling endurance record wrested from them by the Hunter brothers, of Sparta, Ill., today were within one day of their objective. The mark set by the Hunter brothers was 551 hours. At 9:52 a. m. (C. S. T.) tomorrow, Jackson and O'Brien will have exceeded the Hunters' record by the one hour required by the rules of the Na-

CRASH VICTIMS

These two sisters, Eugenia Laws, top, and Mary, below, are victims of Chicago's oddest plane crash. They were passengers on a private plane which plunged into the water pit of a gas tank, killing the two girls and the pilot, who had just gotten his license a short time before.

AGED WOMAN ADMITS MURDER OF HUSBAND

McARTHUR, O., Aug. 12.—Mrs. Josie Napper, 60, was held in the Vinton County Jail here today on a charge of first-degree murder for the ax slaying of her husband, Jasper Napper, 71.

The brutal killing occurred yesterday, Sheriff Ray Cox said, at the Napper home at Hawk Station, near Wellston. The sheriff said Mrs. Napper admitted to him that she struck her husband over the head three times with the ax as he slept in his bed. The aged man's head was split.

Sheriff Cox said the woman had declared she killed Napper because he had been going out with other women and girls.

Mrs. Napper was to be arraigned today on the murder charge.

PATROL CHINATOWN AFTER TONG MURDER

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Fearing a renewal of tong warfare, police squads were patrolling the Chinatown district today following the fatal shooting of George Moe, said to have been a deserter from the Hip Sing tong.

Moe's death was interpreted as a possible warning to other deserters from the Hip Sing ranks. Many Hip Sings recently have gone over to the On Leong tong, according to Chinatown reports.

Fifteen Chinese were arrested in the vicinity of the murder last night and were held for questioning.

SEVERE TYPHOON IS RAGING IN JAPAN

LONDON, Aug. 12.—One of the most severe typhoons in the history of Japan is raging throughout Kyushu, it was reported in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokyo today.

Heavy damage was reported at Nagasaki, but the disruption of communication facilities prevented any details of the disaster from reaching Tokyo.

The Democratic aspirants for the state treasurership were: Hanley W. Cone, Chillicothe; W. V. Gosforth, Gallatin; William J. Hiler, Cober-St. Louis Field here yesterday, and may remain to watch Jackson and O'Brien break their record. The present contenders formerly established a record of more than 420 hours. The condition of the "Greater St. Louis" and its engine, as reported by the pilots indicated that it might remain aloft for several more days.

ELECTION WEATHER IDEAL OVER STATE; TO PREVENT FRAUDS

Attempt To Stuff Ballot Boxes Is Investigated

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 12.—Ohio Democrats and Republicans today were selecting their state, congressional, legislative, judicial and county tickets. They, also, were electing the members of their respective state and county central committees.

With ideal election weather prevailing throughout the Buckeye state, the primary election booths opened for business at 6:30 a. m., Eastern Standard Time. The voting will end at 6:30 p. m., or as soon thereafter as the last voter who was in line when 6:30 arrives has cast his or her ballot.

The nominees chosen today will enter the regular fall campaign which will end at the November election. Nominations were being made for governor, lieutenant governor, United States senator, secretary of state, state treasurer, attorney general, two judges of the Ohio supreme court, members of the Ohio senate and house of representatives, congressmen, appellate court judges, common pleas judges, county commissioners, county auditor, prosecuting attorney, sheriff, county recorder, county treasurer and coroner.

The election returns will be broadcast tonight over stations WLW, Cincinnati, and WAIU, Columbus, direct from Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown's office in the statehouse.

In view of reports alleging election frauds in various parts of the state, Secretary Brown was co-operating today with county election boards in an effort to insure an honest election. For the most part, these reports are of a relatively minor nature.

The most serious complaint came from Cleveland where it was charged plans were on foot to stuff ballot boxes. Friends of former State Senator Arthur H. Day, Cleveland, Republican, a candidate for prosecuting attorney of Cuyahoga County, told of an alleged scheme on the part of supporters of George B. Harris to stuff ballot boxes in the twelfth ward. Harris, also, is a candidate for the G. O. P. nomination for prosecutor. The secretary of state's office was informed that precinct workers in Ironton were furnished with rubber stamps bearing a name not on the printed ballot, with an "X" at the left, and that these stamps were to be used by voters in support of a candidate for county central committeeman.

One candidate for coroner at Columbus charged that the designation "M. D." had been printed illegally on the ballots at the end of the name of another candidate for coroner.

Estimates by election experts as to the number of Ohio voters who will go to the polls today vary from 640,000 to 750,000. There are approximately 3,000,000 eligible voters in the Buckeye State.

These experts estimated, also, that of the 22 to 25 per cent of Ohio voters participating in today's primary, about 500,000 are Republicans and 250,000 are Democrats.

The secretary of state's office estimated that there are 8,987 precincts in Ohio, compared with 9,116 precincts at the last general election.

Aside from the interest aroused by reason of regional contests for county, legislative and judicial offices, the voters were focusing their attention upon the Democratic races for United States Senator and state treasurer, and upon the G. O. P. contest for state treasurer. Of the thirty-one candidates for places on the state tickets nineteen are Democrats and twelve are Republicans.

The candidates for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator were: William W. Durbin, Kenton; John McSweeney, Wooster; George S. Myers, East Cleveland; Robert J. Bulkeley, Cleveland; Charles V. Truax, Bucyrus. United States Senator Roscoe C. Mculloch, Canton, Republican candidate to succeed himself, has no opposition in the primary.

Republican candidates for state treasurer include State Treasurer H. Ross Ake, Canton; former State Treasurer Harry S. Day, Sandusky, and Mrs. Pauline Buckley, Dayton, wife of former State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley.

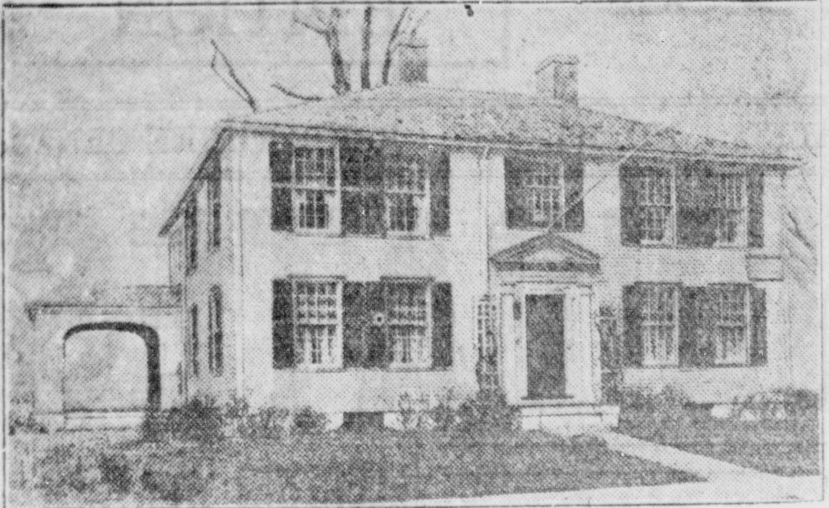

The Democratic aspirants for the state treasurership were: Hanley W. Cone, Chillicothe; W. V. Gosforth, Gallatin; William J. Hiler, Cober-St. Louis; and Joseph T. Ferguson, Lancaster.

Former congressman George White, Marietta, and former state representative Stephen M. Young, Cleveland Heights, were making the race for the Democratic nomination for governor. Former Lieutenant Governor William G. Pick-

English Type House -- Garage Important Element

How Old Is This House?

Careful Preservation of This Home Proves Merit of Keeping Your Home in Good Repair.

Here is an interesting way to test your knowledge of building. Study the house shown in the accompanying illustration, then estimate its age. People who have seen this picture have guessed the house to be all the way from eight to 125 years old. This wide difference of opinion is due to the fact that this building typifies a Colonial design that is popular today.

It was the home of Jonathan Harrington, first man killed in the American Revolution. He was a native of Lexington, Mass., and was mortally wounded during the fighting that took place on Lexington common. By an heroic effort he managed to make his way to the door of his home. Just as his wife opened the door he fell dead.

Now here is a chance to test your knowledge of American History. In order to determine the approximate age of this house, which was the home of a full-grown man at the time of the Revolutionary War, you may have to consult your history books, or ask some child of school age.

The house has been very carefully preserved, because of its unusual historical interest, but what has been done in this building can be done by practically any home owner who wants to maintain his dwelling in as good condition as the day it was built, simply by making minor repairs or replacements the moment they are needed. A well-built home, put on honest foundations, and in good taste at the time it was built, should not "wear out." What is more important, an old dwelling can not only be kept up, but by making use of the services and materials available in the yard of your retail lumber dealer, can have the appearance and all the conveniences of a new house.

Your lumber dealer can show you why it pays to "Keep Your Home in Good Repair," and can show you why this is a good time to have repair work done. Lumber and other building materials are cheaper than they have been for years, and there are experienced, dependable men ready to help you with the more difficult jobs you cannot do alone.

Make a systematic check-up and see what repairs are needed. The back porch is a good place to begin. See that steps and railings are strong and securely fastened, especially if you have children who play about the yard or climb on the porch. Look over your screens and screen doors to see that they are unbroken and fly-tight. See whether parts of the house need paint or varnish to protect them from weathering, scuffing feet, or the touch of sweaty hands. See that under parts of the house, especially beneath enclosed porches, have enough ventilation to prevent dry rot. Sprung or broken doors should be repaired or replaced. Many homes need additional shelving for closets, fruit cellars or lost by spoilage. By installing an electric refrigerator, the purchaser not only constitutes a saving, but insures the health and happiness of his family against spoiled foods for all time."

SAFE DAMAGED BY YEGGS; NO MONEY STOLEN

Yeggs who entered the office of the F. A. Allen combination hardware store and grain elevator on S. Main St. in Cedarville Monday night succeeded in damaging a large safe, which, if they had only known it, had been left unlocked, but obtained little of value for their trouble.

The intruders knocked the combination off the safe, which contained no money and was always left unlocked. One of the inside drawers, which was locked as it contained documents valuable only to the owner, was broken open and the papers were carried away. Four boxes partly filled with cigars were also stolen from a cigar case.

Entrance to the office was gained through a side window by the scales, the marauders pulling bars loose and breaking the window pane.

The business was formerly the Cedarville Farmers' Grain Co., a co-operative concern, and was acquired by Mr. Allen last June 14.

Sheriff Ohmer Tate made an investigation Tuesday morning after the robbery was discovered.

HEALTH FEATURES SELL ELECTRIC REFRIGERATORS

The electric refrigerator is probably more capable of increasing the health and happiness of the American family, than any other recent invention for the household.

A few years ago little thought was given to refrigeration by home-makers. Almost any nook or corner, cooler, in even the slightest degree, than the outside temperature was deemed a satisfactory storage place for even the most perishable of foods.

This belief has been disproved by the scientists and bacteriologists in the employ of the manufacturers of electric refrigerators.

One of their first discoveries was that harmful bacteria developed with great rapidity in foods stored in a temperature above 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

"Destructive bacteria is present in foods at all times," he continued, "and it requires only warmth and moisture to develop it. The growth of this bacteria causes mold, which if consumed, may result in serious ailments."

"It is necessary, therefore, that food be stored in a temperature ranging between 40 and 50 degrees Fahrenheit until used."

"The majority of the people now realize these facts, which in addition to the convenience and utility of electric refrigeration accounts for its tremendous acceptance in a few years time."

"A good electric refrigerator will pay for itself in a short time by the food saving and convenience it makes possible. In the average home, approximately 10 to 15 per cent of the foods purchased are

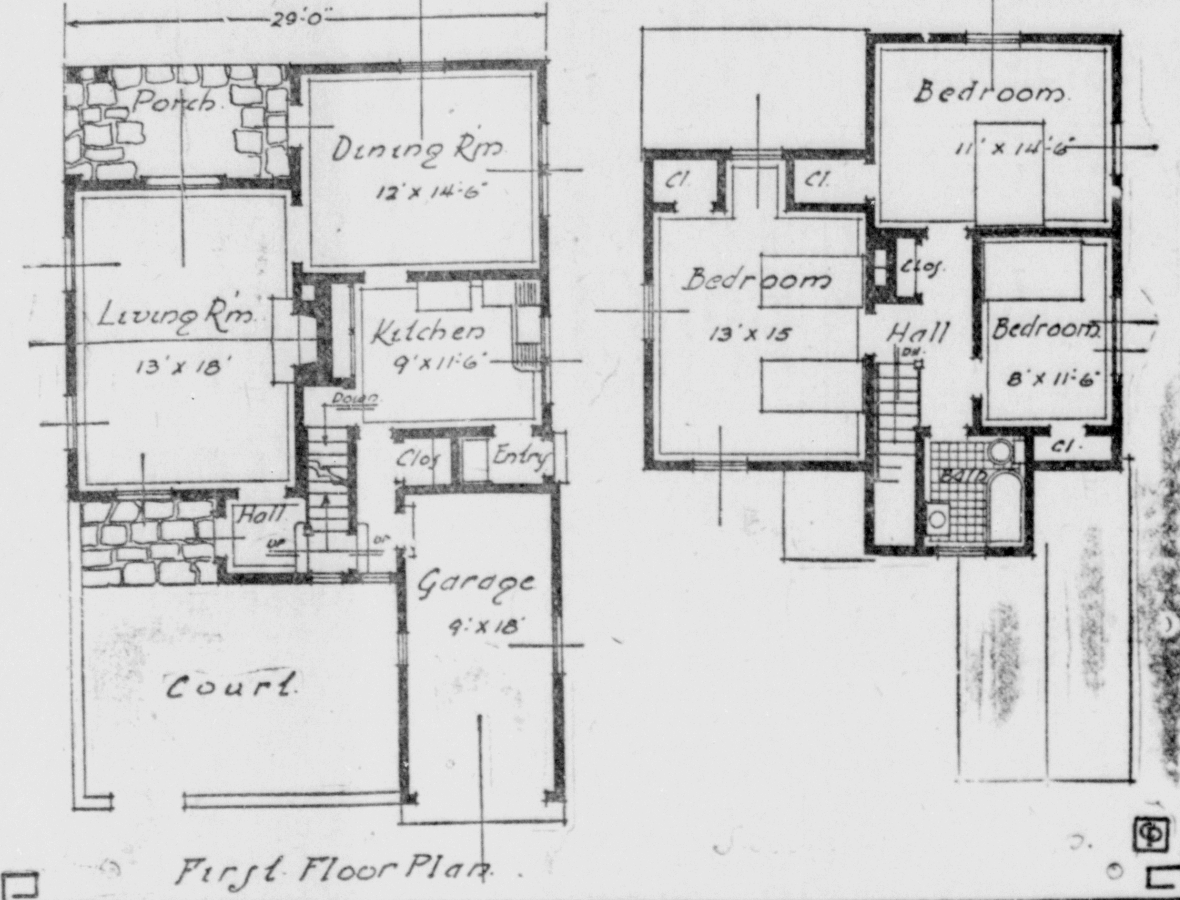

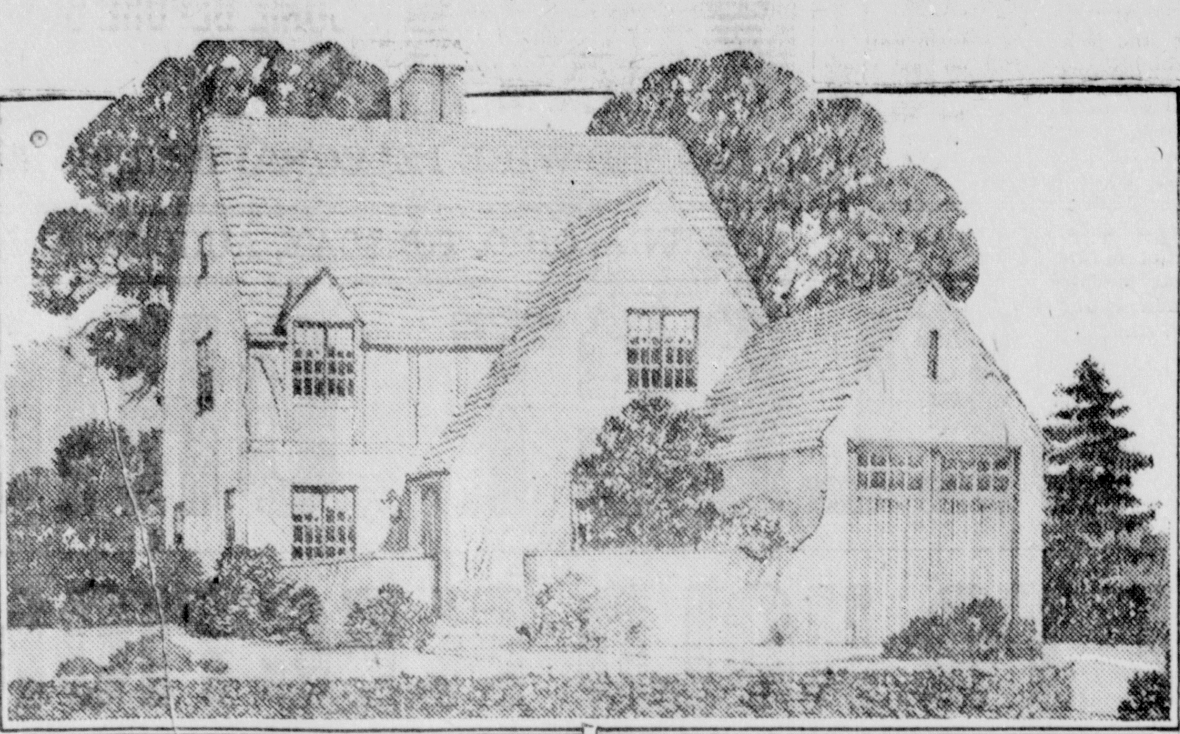

YOUTH SENTENCED TO REFORMATORY

Indicted by the grand jury in July for the theft of 320 pounds of copper wire valued at $70 from the Pennsylvania Railroad, Otis Shearer, 19, of this city, pleaded guilty to a grand larceny charge and was sentenced to from one to seven years in the Mansfield state reformatory by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Monday. The theft occurred last May 28. James R. Pierce, indicted jointly with Shearer on the same charge, was turned over to Dayton authorities who had a prior claim upon him, it became known.

MISS JULIA SHULL CLAIMED BY DEATH

Relatives in Xenia have received word of the death of Miss Julia Shull, formerly of Cedarville, which occurred at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Hannaberry, in Albany, Ind., last week. Miss Shull was ninety-four years of age and infirmities of age and complications was the cause of death. Miss Shull formerly lived in Cedarville, moving from there to Indiana fifty years ago.

Mrs. Margaret Rickett, S. King St., Mrs. W. C. Horner, N. West St., and Mrs. Margaret Brown, Springfield Pike, are nieces of Miss Shull, who survive.

More and more the garage is being made an important element in the design of the small house. Whereas formerly storage space for the automobile was provided in an outside building, it is now often parked right inside the house. In the house pictured the garage is incorporated in the house itself. The house is of the modified English type, built of stucco with an insert of half timber. It has casement windows and gables, and the cubical contents are estimated as 20,000 cubic feet, costing $10,000. The living room overlooks the stone flagged entrance way, and a semi-enclosed porch also laid with flagstones. A door from the dining room opens on this porch. The master's bedroom runs the full width of the house, and there is plenty of closet space. Prepared for Central Press by Architectural Research Bureau, The American Home Magazine.

FEED MILL SOLD AT YELLOW SPRINGS

Announcement was made Tuesday of the purchase of the National Feed Mill at Yellow Springs by L. D. Welch, prominent farmer, near that village. Mr. Welch purchased the mill from C. L. McGinnis, Yellow Springs, who has owned and operated it for the past year, having purchased it from the National Feed Mill Co., at that time and continued to operate it under that firm's name. Mr. Welch, who has been in the coal business in Yellow Springs and also farms near that village will not take possession of the mill until September 1. The mill was built in 1900 and has been operated since that time. A fire in 1923 partly destroyed part of the mill and instead of rebuilding that part destroyed a coal silo was erected in its place. Mr. McGinnis has not announced his plans for the future after Mr. Welch takes possession.

Every House Has 'Em

A creaking stair! A thump in the basement! A hasty search in a dark closet, or maybe in the attic. The whole family is disturbed.

They are ghosts—real ones—ghosts of things we "intend" to do around the house.

Father needs more head room in the basement; the kitchen sink is too low; mother wants shelving in an upstairs closet; a window in the attic—there is a broken railing on the porch; a loose, creaking tread on the stairs.

Then one day comes the sound of a hammer and saw. Presto! The ghosts are laid and the whole family is glad.

Now is the time to fix up your house and do the things you have talked about doing. Building materials are cheaper than they have been for years, and you can get experienced, dependable men to help you with the more difficult jobs

It pays to "Keep Your Home in Good Repair." Come in and talk it over.

WAS MISERABLE UNTIL KONJOLA RELIEVED HIM

Another Victory Over Stubborn Case That Had Resisted Every Medicine Tried.

Many of the victories scored by Konjola are so remarkable that they might challenge belief were the actual facts not known and verified. Take, for instance, the experience of Mr. Milo Gumbert, 733 Marshall Avenue, Youngstown, Ohio, who declares:

"I suffered from stomach and kidney troubles, and was most miserable. Food soured in my stomach, and I had headaches and dizzy spells. Nothing I tried helped me, and I was discouraged. But Konjola triumphed where other treatments failed. My appetite is fine; headaches, backache, and dizzy spells are gone. My kidneys are normal and I feel like a different man. Konjola certainly proved to be a master medicine in my case."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve deadening drugs, no heart depressing chemicals. It needs no such ingredients. It is powerful in the ill of the aged, yet may be given to the infant.

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the fount of the ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

Konjola is sold in Xenia, Ohio at the Gallaher Drug Store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Fair weather and keener interest than usual in local contests for the Republican nomination for county offices was bringing out a fairly heavy primary vote, perhaps somewhat above normal, in Xenia's fourteen precincts Tuesday.

A survey at noon indicated that in Xenia nearly half the total expected vote had been recorded during the morning hours. The feminine voters turned out in unexpectedly large numbers before noon.

A check made of five precincts showed the voting on the Democratic ticket was practically negligible, there being no contests for this party's nominations for county offices.

Only seventeen Democratic votes had been cast as compared with more than 400 Republican ballots. The noon survey Tuesday disclosed these figures:

Precinct	Rep.	Dem.	Vote
No. 5	137	5	400
No. 8	120	5	250
No. 9	101	7	250
Xenia Twp. (S. E.)	35	0	115
Xenia Twp. (north)	50	0	100

DR. HOMER SMITH, BROTHER OF XENIA MAN, DIES MONDAY

Relatives here received word Tuesday morning of the death of Dr. Homer Smith, 75, which occurred at his home in Los Angeles, Calif., Monday night at 9 o'clock. Cause of death was not learned.

Dr. Smith practiced for a number of years in Middletown and also in Westerville after which he went to the Isle of Pines where he operated a large citrus fruit plantation. He had resided in Los Angeles for the last ten years having retired from his medical practice a number of years ago.

Dr. Smith is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Mary Kendall, this city; a son, Homer, Jr., and a grandson, of Los Angeles; Judge H. L. Smith, Union St., this city is a brother of Dr. Smith and he is also survived by a sister, Dr. Eva C. Smith, Middletown.

Details of burial were not received by relatives but it is thought that it will take place in Los Angeles.

UTAH FLOODS CAUSE $100,000,000 LOSS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 2.—An estimate today placed the damage from flood water which raged through Salt Lake valley yesterday, causing residents to flee for their lives before the onrushing water, at approximately $100,000,000.

A score of families narrowly escaped with their lives when the roaring water washed at 50,000-ton clogged dump into a gulch within a stone's throw of the residential section of Bingham, picturesque one-street mining town, thirty miles from here.

Built along the walls of a narrow canyon, above which the Utah Copper Company operates the largest open hearth mine in the world, Bingham was the heaviest sufferer from the flood. Damage there was estimated at $500,000 by town authorities.

Houses were washed away or damaged when a wall of water swept from a nearby canon through Centerville on the Ogden-Salt Lake City Highway. Live stock, farm implements and hay were carried away and a member of the household of David Smith, whose home was washed away, was reported missing.

FAMOUS "SHUT-IN" DIES IN WARREN, O.

WARREN, O., Aug. 2.—Miss Theodosia Haine, 66, probably the world's most noted "shut-in" is dead here today after forty-six years of conducting vigorous religious and social services from the famous "sunshine corner" at her home.

Confined to her bed since she was twenty years of age, at which time she injured her hip, Miss Haine worked up a letter-writing service by which she attempted to bring happiness to thousands of persons who were more unfortunate than herself.

Her home was the mecca of hundreds of visitors from all parts of the world who brought her gifts and curios. Her visitors called her room the "sunshine corner."

ROTARIANS HEAR ADDRESS TUESDAY

Members of Xenia Rotary Club were entertained by a talk delivered by George Browder, Norwood, O., when they met for their regular luncheon Tuesday noon at the Elks' Club. Mr. Browder, who is general sales manager of the Chevrolet Sales Co., in Norwood, made a comparison of prices and production of cars in the present day with those in the days before the World War. Mr. Browder was brought to Xenia by Carlton Anderson of the Lane Chevrolet Co., who was a member of the committee in charge of Tuesday's meeting.

PROBLEM OF SCHOOL BUS DRIVERS WILL COME BEFORE BOARD

A dispute over the hiring of school bus drivers in Xenia Twp., may enliven a session of the Xenia Twp. Board of Education planned for Thursday evening.

The argument is said to have occupied the attention of board members at several recent meetings, and is apparently an outgrowth of the division in the board between new members who took office the first of the year, and holdover members.

The dispute is based on whether to retain the three present bus drivers or to advertise the work by competitive bids. John Ray, J. E. Lyle and D. O. Spahr are the present bus drivers, and are said to have been retained by the old board on a salary.

When the school transportation problem came up an original motion proposed their retention for three years at the same salary.

New members are said to have opposed this suggestion, pointing to the recommendation of Mrs. O. P. Gunkel, state school examiner, that the board should ask for bids as a means of saving money on the transportation of children.

The proposal was then amended to give the bus drivers only one year contracts and is said to have carried by one vote although contracts have not been signed. The question, it is said, is due for another airing at the meeting Thursday night.

The board meets in the offices of the township trustees and the Thursday session, beginning at 8 o'clock, is open to the public.

MURDER WITNESS?

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 12.—The return of Mary Pickford to the legitimate stage in New York City next fall depends upon the finding of a play to her liking.

This was Miss Pickford's comment on an announcement by Arch Selwyn, New York producer, that he planned to present her, along with several other screen stars, in stage plays.

Miss Pickford declared at her home here that if she likes the play offered to her, she will devote what time she had between making talking pictures to the legitimate stage. The amount of time she would give, she said, would be about two months.

In the meantime, Miss Pickford is to start a new picture next month, with another in prospect after that. Her last stage appearance was in "The Warrens of Virginia" for David Belasco in 1908.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SELF-SEEKERS EXPOSED—Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?—Matthew 7:15, 16.

INFLUENCED WASHINGTON

An entire room, the "great chamber" of Gilling castle, Yorkshire, England, has just been purchased by a New York dealer who hopes that it will later be acquired by some museum in America. Magnificently paneled, adorned with a profusion of heraldic designs, with three stained glass windows in excellent color and design, this noted Elizabethan room has associations with the early history of the American colonies by reason of its ownership, centuries ago, by ancestors of the Fairfax family of Virginia. The arms on the principal panel are those of Sir William Fairfax, whose name instantly suggests that of George Washington.

The influence of the Fairfax family on the life of young Washington, has been noted by his biographers. In 1748 the Lord Fairfax of that day, who had inherited vast holdings in Virginia, supervised for him by his cousin, William, came to visit America. At the age of 16 years Washington was living with his older step-brother, Lawrence, at Mt. Vernon, near Belvoir, the Fairfax mansion. In neighborly fashion the lad was taken fox hunting by the 60-year-old peer, who also sent Washington with a surveying party under George William Fairfax, son of William, eight years older than Washington, but destined to be his life-long friend. A year later, once more through the interest of Lord Fairfax, Washington was made a county surveyor at a salary of approximately $500 a year. Lord Fairfax had meanwhile built Greenway Court on a 10,000-acre estate in the Shenandoah valley where Washington often visited him and browsed in his well-stocked library. But about this same time the marriage of George William Fairfax to Sally Cary, whose father had an estate on the James river not too distant from Williamsburg, brought into Washington's life the person who was to make him realize that he had fallen in love with his best friend's wife. From "Love Stories of Famous Virginians," Rupert Hughes quotes: "After Sally married Fairfax, Washington was frequently at Belvoir and Mrs. Fairfax became his patron and instructress in the fine arts of courtesy and good breeding, while her brain, in its strength and flowering, matched his. She rounded the angles of this sturdy, remarkable young man, and gave him the rare opportunity of mingling with the essence of refinement and culture."

Nothing so illustrates the restraint imposed upon human nature by colonial standards of morals and good breeding than the eventual decision of Washington to bury his hopeless passion deep in his heart. Many men before him and since his time have fallen in love with the wives of their best friends, as many women have loved their friends' husbands. But in an era of trial marriage and easy divorce, the situations are often handled differently. It should be no shock to discover that Washington was human enough to love a woman who could never be his, since the very proof of his greatness lay in the manner in which he resolutely ordered his life in the light of so bitter a disappointment.

SUMMER EFFORTS FOR PROGRESS

As the summer time continues, it becomes more difficult to carry on organization work. But our efforts to make a finer community here should not be relaxed.

If it is too fine outdoors to go to some organization or other important meeting, the beauty of the bright weather should make it just the time to make needed improvements about our home places. It should be just as much pleasure to make our home places shine, as to engage in some sport. The beauty of nature about us, should inspire us to make our homes more beautiful. We should be ashamed to tolerate any ugliness or disorder, when nature around us is so inspiring.

WHAT DO YOU LIKE?

Children in a Scotch town, asked what kind of movies they like best, give astonishing answers. Ninety-eight per cent of the boys voted for "love films." Ninety-four per cent of the girls wanted war, murder, fighting. You never can tell.

WE DON'T FOOL THEM

Here is a man with a sense of humor, and not afraid to face facts. Says G. O. Myers, Cleveland educator, "We must at times seem very funny to our children. We parents often take ourselves too seriously out our children don't. They must often laugh to themselves at our eccentricities and egotisms. We are always right and they are always wrong."

"We consider it quite proper to be rude to them, to interrupt them, to contradict them and talk back to them; but they had better look out if they try to do the same toward us."

We don't own children. They are human beings, to be treated as such, given credit for what they know and what they try to do. Only the man who has never made a mistake has a right to expect his child to be as good as that.

THE FORCE OF PICTURES

Hays, picture boss, sees films, distributed all over the world, breaking down the barriers between nations. We will get acquainted with each other through motion pictures. Let Germans, Frenchmen, Americans laugh with each other instead of at each other and we will get along.

HORNS

New York begins a drive on unnecessary noise from auto horns. The idea is to have a horn that will give adequate warning without nerve-racking din. Why not drive on the too long morons in a long line-up?

POWER

Matter, made up of atoms, is full of power. For atoms are in motion, whirling at terrific speed. Release the power of the atom and there would be enough energy in a drop of water to furnish 200-horsepower for a year, says E. O. Eddington, Cambridge university scientist. But to get out the power it would be necessary to heat matter up to 40,000,000 degrees. So far laboratories have produced only a little warmth—a mere matter of a million degrees.

HARD DRINKING

The liquor business was always bad enough but the poison business is worse.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

What is meant by an air pocket?
The evenness of air while flying varies with the temperature. If the air is warm, or what is called thin air, it is difficult to gain altitude. In cold or dense air it is easy to gain altitude. The air over cities is warmer than that over the surrounding country. It is when a flyer approaches warmer air that the plane has a tendency to lose altitude. In some places a change from cold to warm air is very abrupt. This is known as an air pocket or bumpy air.

Venice

How far from the mainland is the city of Venice, Italy, situated?
The city is two and one-half miles from the mainland, and is connected by railroad bridges of 222 arches.

Stage Directions

In reading stage directions, on which side is the right center?
Directions on the stage are always considered from the spectators' angle. Thus the right center would be at the spectators' right.

Classical Music

What is classical music?
It is defined as standard music; music of first rank, written by composers of the highest order; music whose form and style have been accepted as suitable for a model to composers.

Highest Priced Coin

What is the greatest amount ever paid for an old coin in the United States?

The highest figure paid in this country was for a privately-minted $5 gold piece issued in California in 1849, during the gold fever period. The price was $7,900 paid by a Philadelphia dealer for a private collector. The coin was minted for the Massachusetts and California companies, and bears on its face a shield on which is depicted a cowboy throwing a lariat with a bear and deer at either side.

Peter Versus Paul

What is the derivation of the expression "robbing Peter to pay Paul?"

It had its origin in the rivalry between St. Peter's cathedral, now Westminster abbey, and St. Paul's cathedral, in London. In 1550 an appropriation was made from St. Peter's to make up for a deficit in the account of St. Paul's. The action met with opposition, the question being asked, "Why rob St. Peter to pay St. Paul?"

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—Over near the Harlem river there's a little Chinese laundry with a red stucco facade. The proprietor's name is Jo Wing. He tells me he went to Yale. He has a wide, yellow-and-red striped awning, a cat and a canary, grows lilies in a blue bowl with pebbles, and the day I met up with him he was occupying a kitchen chair tilted back of the counter in his shop, smoking a cigarette and reading "The Dissenting Opinions of Mr. Justice Holmes."

SNOBISH CLERKS

It isn't pleasant to shop on Fifth avenue in the good old summertime. The clerks, while not discourteous, don't seem to be able to muster much respect for anyone who lingers in town during the heated term. They look at you as much as to say: "If you really amounted to anything you wouldn't be here at this time of the year."

HAVE A HEART!

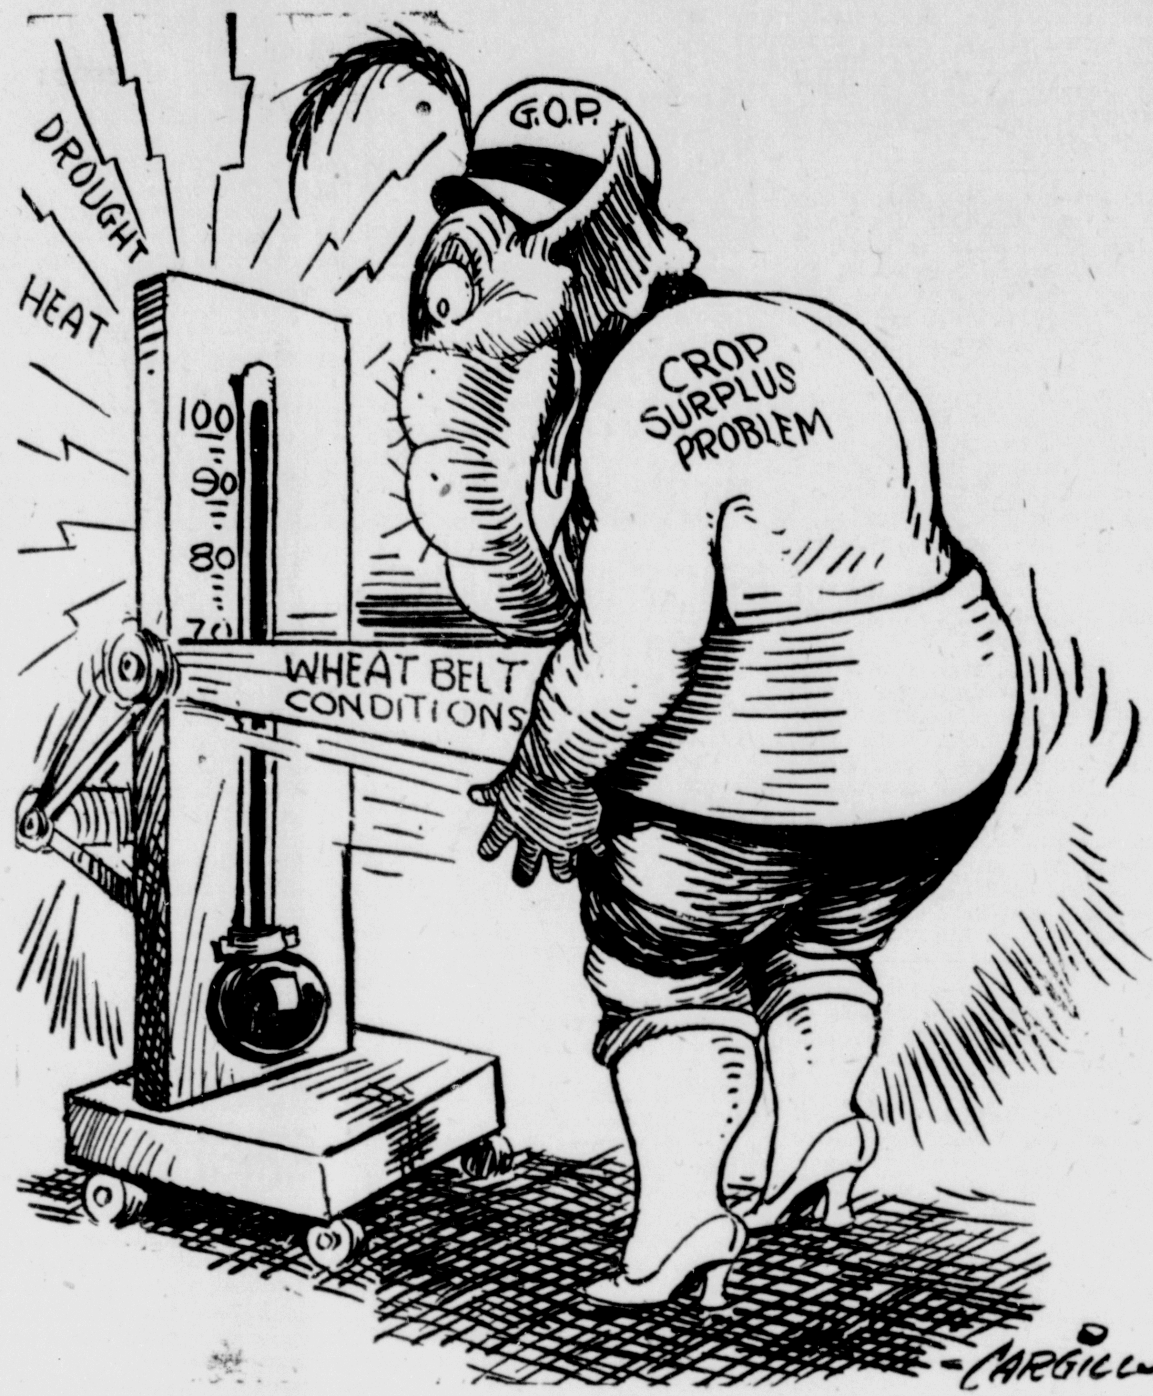

The weather bureau in New York is situated on top of a downtown skyscraper. Naturally it's cooler there than down on the street, with the asphalt drawing and holding the fire of the sun. When you've tramped through the city all day with the mercury sizzling somewhere around the century mark, it's disconcerting to pick up your morning newspaper and find that yesterday's "official" temperature was only 89.

It's all right to be optimistic about business conditions; but when the weather's hot, it's hot and there's no use in lying about it.

SPEAKING OF ART
The world's worst aggregation of statuary is to be found in Central Park. They've been there a long time. How some of them ever got there at all is a mystery. The funniest one of the bunch is that of Bobby Burns. He's squatted in an arm chair of heroic proportions, a wad of manuscript on his lap. His right mitt, dangling across the arm of the chair, clutches a quill. His head is thrown back, his mouth is open, his glance skewered on the cerulean blue. The artist intended to convey a musing mood. What he's actually done is to feature Bobby in the act of a maternal gargle.

What an ad that statue would be for a mouth wash!

NATURE'S REMEDY

BORAH TO HAVE AN EASY TIME RETAINING SEAT, IN CONTRAST TO OTHER PROGRESSIVE LEADERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho may be as progressive as the next man.

Nevertheless the stand pat "intrusts" show no such anxiety to beat him for re-election as they do to defeat Senators George W. Norris of Nebraska and Thomas J. Walsh of Montana.

Norris and Walsh have hard campaigns on their hands. Borah seems unlikely to encounter any serious opposition, according to accounts from Pocatello, Boise and the Coeur d'Alene region.

Perhaps the Idaho senator has lacked the forces of conservatism so often that they are too discouraged even to try to fight him. Still, if that's it, one would think they'd feel the same way about Senator Norris, in Nebraska. Evidently they don't. Norris has been licking them for more years than Borah has been doing it, and just as regularly, but his friends say the signs are that they are going to give "Uncle George" the tussle of his life.

They do not appear to be afraid of Senator Walsh, in Montana, either.

There is nothing partisan about the stand pat "intrusts." They have put a conservative Republican up against Senator Walsh, because Walsh is a progressive Democrat.

And in the Nebraska primaries they put a conservative Democrat up against Senator Norris, because "Uncle George" is a progressive Republican.

First, of course, the stand patters tried to beat "Uncle George" out of a re-nomination. This brings up the story of the attempt to keep the senator off by putting another George W. Norris name on it.

"Uncle George's" admirers represented it as a dirty trick of the "intrusts," and probably really believed that that was what it was, but I doubt whether it was the "intrusts' idea. It looked more like a parum-skarum, irresponsible stunt—malicious, maybe, but not well-planned, as it would have been if the "intrusts" had inspired it.

It will be recalled that "Uncle George's" rival for the Nebraska Republican senatorial nomination was a George W. Norris who had a job in a Broken Bow chain grocery store.

Two George W. Norrises on the G. O. P. primary ticket would have nullified each other, undeniably.

No Republican voter could have indicated, without invalidating his ballot, which George W. Norris he was voting for, and without some such indication, the tellers could not have determined which one was meant.

The generally accepted explanation of Grover Norris' candidacy was that the "intrusts" had concocted the scheme to drive "Uncle George" into abandoning his fight for the Republican nomination and running as an independent, in order to identify himself.

This might have cost him some hard-and-fast Republican votes and thus injured him—or it might have helped him, by creating sympathy in his behalf.

It looks to me as too uncertain an experiment for the intelligent.

"intrusts" to have risked. Moreover, Grover Norris filed his name so late for the primary ticket, that the courts rejected it. When the super-efficient "intrusts" stoop to chicanery, they are better at it than that. Finally, why couldn't "Uncle George" have signed in full?—George William—unless Grover Norris is George William also, which would be a decided coincidence.

No, no: the whole thing seems merely smartly—quite unlike the "intrusts."

If anything, it promises to turn out to "Uncle George's" advantage. He gets on the regular Republican ticket, anyway, the "intrusts" are sure to be blamed for trying to hornsaw him, whether they did or not, and the probabilities are it will make him a lot of votes. Some such scandal, doubtless, would be helpful to Tom Walsh, out in Montana, in his duel with Justice Albert J. Galen, the "intrusts' candidate (according to the progressive version) in that neck of the woods.

All this fails to explain why Senator Borah's re-election appears to be so completely foregone a conclusion in Idaho—with hardly a contest in progress, from what little one is able to hear—with the senator recuperating, in fact, from his progressive activities here in Washington, at some rest cure up in Maine, while the campaign (such as it is) is on.

Aren't there any "intrusts" in Idaho?

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

THE FAT QUEEN'S WELCOME
Worker Ant stroked Peter with her antennae.

"Just to show my people that I like you," his mommy explained to Peter, Watching Worker Ant, the crowd of insects decided that they had made a mistake—that after all the stranger was friend not foe. They ceased their angry muttering and stood with mouths open, waiting to see what happened.

"Hello, everybody!" cried Worker Ant. I've invited him to be our guest but when he heard it is moving day he insisted upon helping us."

My goodness, but those ants were pleased. They were hard workers and as long back as they could remember, nobody had ever offered to help them before. They cheered until they were hoarse and waved their antennae at Peter. There was a great hubbub and hubbaloob for a moment. Then Peter's particular friend raised a claw for silence, and almost at once one could have heard a pin drop. A very fat Ant stepped to the fore and bowed low to Peter.

"As the oldest Queen in the tribe it gives me great pleasure to welcome you!" the fat one spoke solemnly. "I hope you will forget your first greeting and remember only the second. To tell the truth, it was easy to make a mistake today when our nerves are on edge. It isn't any small task to carry our precious treasures from hill to hill in perfect safety. When first we sighted you we didn't know but other were following in your footsteps. None of us know you. You might have been a scout sent from another tribe to spy upon our movements."

LUNCHEON

Stuffed Tomato Salad
Pimento Cheese Sandwiches
Goose Liver Sandwiches
Fresh Berries Layer Cookies

DINNER

Baked White Fish Ribbon Potatoes
Baked Stuffed Tomatoes
Stuffed Olives Tiny Pickled Beets
Ginger Ale Salad
Parker House Rolls Crabapple Jelly
Gooseberry Pie
Coffee

These menus are luncheon and dinner menus respectively, and planned with guests expected. All the items of both menus may be prepared ahead of time so that the rush time for preparing the meals will be slight.

TODAY'S RECIPES

LAYER COOKIES—First layer: One-half cup shortening, two eggs, one cup white sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder. Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and vanilla. Last flour sifted with salt and baking powder. Spread one-quarter inch thick over shallow, greased pan. Second layer: One cup brown sugar, one egg white, one-half teaspoon vanilla, three-fourths cup chopped walnuts. Beat egg, fold in sugar. Add vanilla. Spread over the first layer. Sprinkle with walnuts. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit). Cut in squares while still warm.

GINGER ALE SALAD—Two tablespoons granulated gelatin, one-half cup water, two tablespoons sugar, five tablespoons lemon juice (strained), and one-half cups ginger ale, and one sweet small orange, peeled and cut in small cubes, one cup canned pineapple, drained and diced, one-half cup celery hearts, diced; one-fourth teaspoon salt, one pimento, diced crisp lettuce and boiled salad dressing. Soften gelatin in water, add sugar and salt and set over boiling water until dissolved. Let cool thoroughly, add lemon juice and ginger ale. When beginning to "set" fold in orange, pineapple, celery and pimento. Turn into individual molds which have been dipped in cold water, when thoroughly set turn onto a nest of crisp lettuce and serve with mayonnaise or good, piquant, boiled salad dressing. Garnish with paprika or snips of pimento.

SUGGESTIONS

Grinding Chocolate
When you are preparing chocolate for a devil's food it is quite a time saver to put the whole cake of chocolate through the food chopper. The remainder can be kept in a small jar until needed.

Sheets, tablecloths and napkins will iron much easier and the selvedge edge will not stretch unevenly if when wringing these articles you gather the selvedge edges in your hand and wring them in that position.

Adjust Food To Supply Body Needs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

There are five basic essentials of a normal diet:

1. Enough nutrition.
2. Enough protein and salts.
3. Fresh food. Life giving substances. Vitamins.
4. Enough water.
5. The food must be reasonably free from bacteria contamination, especially certain disease producing bacteria and parasites.

Let us study each of these requirements.

First, enough fuel or nutrition or energy. Your body is a kind of a machine. It requires energy to keep it going. The energy it requires is no different from any other kind of physical energy—heat, electricity. When a muscle lifts your leg in walking it does so by using up so much energy. This energy is obtained from burning food. Especially starches, sugars and fats. Proteins or animal foods, can, however, be used in this way.

So every diet must contain enough of these substances to keep the engine going. If no food is taken in for a time the body begins to attack its own substance and break it down. This can go on for a certain length of time only. Long starvation regimens advocated by extreme fastidists are always dangerous.

How much energy do you need a day? It depends upon your age, weight and activities? Babe Ruth needs more than Mr. Hoover, because the Babe does ten or twenty times as much muscular work. A one-year-old child needs more than an old man of eighty. The baby's organism is keyed to this higher rate of expenditure of energy and it kicks around more and makes more unconscious movements. If they took the same number of steps Paul Whiteman would need more than Rudy Vallee because when Whiteman walks up a flight of stairs he pulls up nearly twice as much weight as Rudy Vallee.

Thus weight, age and activity, determine the amount of food you need.

The actual energy requirement of any person can be measured with great accuracy. The unit of measurement is the calorie. A calorie is a certain amount of heat, a certain amount of energy.

Many people have some difficulty in getting a clear mental picture of what a calorie is. Dr. Jodin has given us a definite picture of what you do when you use up one calorie.

A person weighing a hundred and fifty pounds, sitting in a chair, rises, closes the door and reseats himself. He has used up one calorie. On the average he uses up 2,400 of them a day.

What food amounts represent one calorie? One drop of cream is one calorie. Break an oblong cracker into four equal parts. Each is one calorie. The amount of granulated sugar you can get on the tip of a small after dinner coffee spoon is one calorie.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up, in order, in the daily column. Address your queries to Dr. Logan Clendenning, care of this paper. Watch Popular Youths

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Cheer up, girls! You are not the only ones who fail to attract the opposite sex. Boys have the same difficulty, as these letters prove:

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a young man of 23 and considered by the other fellows quite good looking. I have a good position and am able to spend money both on clothes and girls, yet I never met a girl who appeared to care for me after having two or three dates."

"I am polite and I try not to lose my girl friends, yet something is lacking about me, and I cannot decide just what it is. "Will you tell me if it is my fault, or do you think it is just because I have not yet met the girl who is to be my mate?" J. R."

"Dear Virginia: I am well-mannered, good looking and neat. I go with a nice bunch of fellows and girls, but do not have the satisfaction of having a certain girl as my friends do."

"Virginia, please tell me what the trouble can be. I confess that I try to be a good fellow and probably overdo it sometimes, but so do the other fellows. Please advise me. Sincerely,

"HERMAN F."

It's pretty hard to tell what the trouble is, boys, without seeing you. Maybe you are too sensitive, and when a girl is obliged to refuse one date—sometimes happens even when she would like very much to accept—you decide she doesn't want to go with you, and don't ask her again.

Are you good talkers, interested in things that are going on? Do you read a good deal? Reading helps a man to be a good conversationalist. Watch the fellows who do seem to make a hit with the girls. What have they that you lack? If you can find nothing, and you still seem to be unpopular, experiment. Next time you see a girl who maps out a program—adopt a line. Tell her she's the most understanding girl you were ever out with. Praise the color of her eyes, her hair, her voice, subtly, of course. Let your eyes tell more than your lips.

If that course fails use indifference. Adopt the attitude of a man slightly bored with women, making remarks from time to time that you will never marry. That you don't believe any girl living could make you want to give up your freedom.

If all this fails, don't give up hope, but write me again. There is no good reason why two such nice boys cannot have girls. It may be, of course, that you simply have not met the right ones, and later you'll be mobbed by charming young ladies. It sometimes happens that way. Or maybe you have not asked the right ones.

"DEAR MISS LEE: I've read about different advice you have given on how to get and keep a sweetheart, but what I want to know is how to get rid of one? "Some time ago I went with a boy I never really cared about, but I went with him just to keep from breaking up the gang."

"After I went a few times I decided he was the most unbearable human I ever knew. I asked him as nice as I knew how, not to come back any more, but he came anyway."

"He made himself so disgusting that I was so bold as to tell him that I had no respect for him whatever, and couldn't stand him. Well, he up and apologized four times. He is much younger than I am, but he says he looks old."

"Whatever can I do to keep him from hanging around?" J. R."

Don't be at home when he calls. J. R., and if he does catch you excuse yourself by saying you are busy. If he never has a chance to take you anywhere or talk to you he will soon grow tired of coming around.

Wear Black Swim Suit If Weighty

By GLADYS GLAD

It is interesting to note the talent many women display in gowning themselves to obscure figure defects, or in wearing shades that enhance their natural coloring. And the beach is the place where such cleverness is taxed to its utmost.

Most women are aware that black, whether in gown or in bathing suit, lends a slimmness to the figure. But they do not realize that a black bathing suit will not efface curves of immense proportions. Moreover, the uncovered parts of the body seem twice their real size by mere contrast.

For the excessively fat figure, the one that hits the 200 pound mark, the two-piece black bathing suit is best. It should not be too close-fitting, and the pants should fit loosely.

True, this type of suit is not entirely up-to-date, but neither are women who permit themselves to carry around so much fat. Usually, however, such women are not young, and don't deem it necessary to be garbed in the height of fashion. Really, decency demands this type of suit for the extremely fat figure.

I have seen women who look actually presentable in such a suit, but who would look frightful in the regular one-piece suit. Now for a word about color in bathing suits. The blondes should strive for contrast in their natural coloring and their beach attire. Let the brunettes wear those charming canary yellow and flaming orange suits. Let the dark blondes—and also the light blondes—use the red suits, red caps and slippers. Color, strikingly vivid, belongs to beach attire. Get it into your beach ensemble.

ble. And by all means, choose a color that won't look shabby, faded and soiled before the season is half finished.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

Withdrawal of Company L's softball team from the American League is to be regretted. Undoubtedly the boys may have been discouraged because of the team's failure to win a single game but the guard unit should have finished out the season. Practically all the guardsmen were unfamiliar with the sport when the season began but improvement in their play was bound to come sooner or later. The old Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity team, if we remember correctly, did not win a game one season until its final contest, but the players probably got more fun out of the season than the other teams who won most of their games.

Those Cincinnati Reds and Philadelphia Phillies are unique ball clubs. The Phillies, in last place, have the heaviest hitting team in the league with a team average of around .320, but averages disclose they are the worst defensive club and get the poorest pitching. The Reds are the best defensive team in the league and the most feeble hitting outfit. Here we have the best offensive and the best defensive clubs occupying eighth and seventh places, respectively, in the league.

Give the Phillies a little good pitching and they would be pennant contenders. They have the two best batters in the league in O'Doul and Klein, both of whom keep near the 400 mark. And still the team loses games consistently because of inefficient mound work.

At that the fan at Redland Field Sunday during the Cincinnati-Philadelphia double-header, hit the nail on the head when he made the remark that "any player who is able to stay in the American League even for only a year is good enough to play regularly for the Reds the rest of his natural days." He was a supporter of Bob Messel, who absorbs plenty of razzing every time he steps to the plate to bat.

The observation was also made Sunday by a fan, after the Phillies had nosed out the Reds, 18 to 0, in the first game, that the Cincinnati team must have taken a correspondence school course in how to play baseball. If so, its diploma was probably lost in the mail.

The new E. Main St. midget golf links is proving popular among residents in that part of town. They say patrons have to wait in line to get on. Only nine holes have been completed but nine more holes will be added soon to make it a regulation eighteen-hole affair. Harve Thomas, handy man about the Gazette office, thinks it's a great game.

KIDS' MINIATURE LINKS BUILT

The "E. Galloway St. Gang" not to be outdone by the grown-ups, is building its own miniature golf course—and what a course it will be.

The hazards being installed run the gamut from tin cans and wash boards to corrugated cardboard and even an ice cream bucket with the bottom knocked out.

The "Gang" is composed of boys ranging in age from 13 years down to 5 and its members have been laboring industriously on the midget links for the last week.

Observations of amused residents in the vicinity indicate the course will be a nine-hole affair, being situated adjacent to an alley between Galloway and King Sts. near the extreme north end of Galloway.

The "Gang" is optimistic that the course will bring tremendous financial returns. Youngsters under the age of 6 years will be charged a penny to play the nine holes but the boys have raised the ante to three cents for adults.

Kansas "Dark Horse"

SHARKEY - CARNERA BATTLE IN CHICAGO SEPTEMBER PROMISE

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Chicago, gateway to romance, may be the site of the greatest prize fight of this and several preceding years, according to negotiations that were rapidly coming to a show down today. The principals—Primo Carnera and Jack Sharkey, respectively bigger than anybody and better than anybody, the scene—Soldiers Field, where the finale of the Dempsey-Tunney dramas was enacted. The date—Monday, September 23. The distance—ten rounds to a decision. The gate—write your own ticket and don't spare the ink.

If this fight is made, it will carry no title, barring unofficial recognition as heavyweight champion of the world, a distinction now enjoyed by the Herr Schmeling while lying prone upon the nape of his neck. If the fight is made—nera's bevy of managers and seconds and thirds have agreed to terms. The Sharkey people are coming into town tomorrow, ready to say it with fountain pens. They really are leveling, since Mique Malloy, propositioned the managers of twenty heavyweights by wire on a Carnera match and only one of them answered. His name is Johnny Buckley, manager of Sharkey.

It virtually is made now. Car-

Buckley explained that Sharkey was foot loose and disposed to step out with the first promoter who talked an intelligent prize fight. There is something of a moral obligation with Madison Square Garden, it seems, but of course a moral obligation is one of those things or maybe two of them. The Garden wants to make a Sharkey-Stripling fight for September but so far hasn't been able to figure a way of doing it without Sharkey. Having failed to make any progress under the Garden banner, it appears that he now wishes to do his falling elsewhere.

MERRIWELL FINISH BY HUSTON GIVES D. T. C. CLUB VICTORY

It was the last half of the ninth inning of a typical National League game between the D. T. C. Club and the Downtown Club at the athletic field Monday night. Runners occupied first and second bases but there were two out and the Downtowners were trailing by one run. Then "Sam" Huston, home run merchant of the team, strode to the plate and slammed a mighty blow to right center, the timely circuit swat giving the Downtowners a 11 to 9 victory after a bitter struggle.

By virtue of the victory the D.

T. C. Club retained a mathematical chance to tie the Lang Chevrolet for the league title, but in any event ousted Geyers from the runner-up position in the standing.

This heated battle, as is almost always the case when these two arch rivals get together, was filled with a variety of baseball, good and bad, plenty of hitting on both sides, ragged and brilliant fielding with feeling running high among the players.

The game was a see-saw affair, with first one team and then the other going into the lead.

Geyers counted a run in the first inning and another in the second with the Downtowners scoring once in the second. In the third Geyers assumed a commanding advantage by marking up four more runs but this lead collapsed entirely when the Country Club nine uncorked a six-run rally in the last of the third, making the score 7 to 6. Geyers went scoreless the next four stanzas while the Downtowners produced another run in the third. In the eighth a walk and three hits were good for three runs and put Geyers ahead once more, 9 to 8.

This stage was appropriately set for the winning rally of the Downtowners in the last of the ninth. With one down, McCurran and Farnham singled. Purdom forced McCurran at third but reliable Sam Huston broke up the game with a lovely blow to right center that Yeakley partly blocked but could not hold.

Geyers amassed sixteen hits, all singles but one, and the Downtowners collected fifteen bingles, the homer by Huston being the only extra base blow.

"Buildup" Smith, Geyer third baseman and the league's leading hitter, had a perfect day at bat, getting three singles and walking twice. Burnett and Fuller also got three hits apiece.

Jimmie McCurran, Downtowner catcher, was the hitting star of the game, however, with four singles in five times up. "Bunnie Purdom," manager of the team, played right field and proved a distinct asset to his team. He got on base four times, scored three runs and his single in the third round came with the bases full, driving in two runs. Bob Morton's shoe string catch of "Pop" Boxwell's bid for a homer in the fourth was the fielding feature.

Boxwell and Farnham were the opposing pitchers. Lineups:

GREENE COUNTY FORTUNATE IN DROUGHT SITUATION IS FOUND

Damage done to grain and forage crops in Greene County by the prolonged drought, while severe, is probably not as great as in many other agricultural sections in this part of the state, in the opinion of County Agent E. A. Drake.

The county agent is busily engaged obtaining information relative to the drought situation in this county as requested in telegrams he has received from Arthur Hyde, United States secretary of agriculture. H. C. Banzower, director of agricultural extension at Columbus, and Frank Hard, supervisor of the state conservation commission.

Declaring a preliminary survey has indicated the southern part of the county suffered most from lack of rainfall, Mr. Drake estimated that 15 per cent of the cattle, sheep and hogs, has been forced on the market by the drought and that actual prices being paid for livestock are 30 per cent less than normal. This, he said, is due to the unfinished condition of livestock, particularly hogs, and may be attributed to a scarcity of feed. Condition of livestock generally is held to be fair.

While there is also a shortage of good pasture, what exists has much substance and food value even if lacking in water, he asserted.

The county agent predicted the

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Unsettled in a small group of stocks of companies catering directly to the American farmer was the stock market's response today to the government's report showing a broad deterioration in corn and other food crops.

The shrinkage in the farmers' buying power caused by the burning up of the crops will in all probability be reflected in the reduction in the fall business of the mail-order houses and the makers of farm implements. At least this was Wall Street's deduction as the bears attempted again to crack the market by pouring in heavy selling orders in the forenoon. Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck declined to the low levels of the year and the high-priced specialties sold off a few points.

Outside this small group no particular damage was done. Stock sales up to the noon period totaled only 700,000 shares, or at the rate of less than 2,000,000 for the full season. The rally in the specialty stocks, which forced Warner Brothers from its opening price of 24 1/2 to above 29, Vanadium to above 86 and United States Steel to above 160 was probable the result of short covering by the professionals, who had again committed the error of over-selling the short side of a dull market.

SPLASH! She Swims to Conquer

By Eleanore Burnett

Copyright, 1930, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST:

Kitty Wilmot, secretary to Elery Goss, is pursued by Atlee Wainwright, who hates Gordon Platt, Goss' confidential man, whom she assists in running down a "leak" in the office; Atlee makes violent love to Kitty who flees to Sally Ayers. Baby, Sally's small sister, has hysterics at what she says of Atlee. Kitty meets Boss Kelliher, at a party given by Hilda, blond phone operator, overhears a cryptic conversation and with difficulty escapes Kelliher's escort. On her steps a note is delivered which asks her to a secret breakfast with Gordon Platt. At Platt's request she gets to know Hattie Bridges, another of Goss' secretaries. At her house she is surprised to see Baby Ayers in company with Mrs. Bridges' bond salesman nephew—evidently there is a connection between Sally Ayers, Bridges and the stock market.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 16

Excitedly Kitty waited for the entry of the unknown man who had been with Baby Ayers. Hattie Bridges had obtained her job at the same time that Kitty did; only through Kitty's quick wit had she managed to land it. Kitty has always supposed Hattie outside her circle of friends. But Baby Ayers knew Mrs. Bridges' nephew; Fatty Hemming, stock broker, knew Baby and Sally. Sally worked for Elery Goss! What could be Hattie Bridges' part in the leak? Could it be possible that Sally was concerned? Were Sally and Atlee together in the secret making of illicit profits? If Hattie Bridges had been "planted" to get secret information, what had happened to make Sally and Atlee feel that it could no longer come through them?

It was all a puzzle that didn't make sense! Sally couldn't be a crook! Kitty didn't believe it of Atlee, either, in spite of his outrageous conduct. Baby knowing Hattie Bridges' nephew was just a coincidence!

All this in a flash, between his knock and his entry. But then Kitty had the surprise of her life! His appearance carried out what Mrs. Bridges had said of him; he looked like a gentleman, a good fellow, a kindly, honest man. But Kitty was learning to distrust her first judgments. She had thought all that of Atlee, too!

Mrs. Bridges introduced them: "My nephew, Joe Fortune, Miss Wilmot."

"Wilmot? Wilmot? Is this Miss Kitty Wilmot?"

"Why, yes!" answered Kitty. How could the man know her name?

"Well, this is luck!" cried Mr. Fortune. "Been hopin' to meet you for weeks! Darling child, if you're game we'll give th' Queen th' surprise of her career!"

"You mustn't mind Joe's talk!" put in Mrs. Bridges. "He's always like that. Joe, who is this the Queen you are forever talking about?"

Kitty looked from one to the other, nonplussed.

"Don't you wish you knew!" he was obviously teasing. "When th' Queen says 'Joe, let's get married,' I'll tell you! But not before! But Kitty, here—she knows th' Queen well! It's th' Queen who wrote me all about her human fish, her pretty dainty Venus. But don't you tell Auntie, here! She'd be goin' straight away to th' Queen an' tell in her if she didn't marry old Joe she'd have her arrested or something!"

Light dawned on Kitty. Queer, yet it must be true—this was Sally's Joe, who had been away so long—then Sally must be the Queen. Of course he knew Baby! Why not? Then it was all a mare's nest—this connection between Hattie Bridges and Fatty Hemming and Atlee and Sally, through Baby—most natural thing in the world. Kitty didn't know whether to be relieved or sorry. It was devilish that Gordon Platt should have managed to make her even momentarily suspicious of her friends!

She felt very much better over the fibs she had told him. Womanlike this made her feel kindly toward Joe Fortune.

"I can't guess!" she smiled at him. "So I couldn't tell if I wanted to."

They chatted for awhile, then Kitty said she must go. Nothing would do but Joe must see her home, which he did, in a taxi.

"Fancy meeting you at Aunt Hattie's!" he cried as soon as they were started. "Sally is wild about you, girlie! Let's go there! We'll go in, intimate friends. Tell you what, let me carry you in! Or walk in with my arm around you—Oh, don't worry! I'm harmless! I'm mad in the head about th' Queen! I'd rather marry her than be president! But she won't see me. I'd love to tease her a bit—what you say?"

Kitty laid her hand on his arm. "Joe, you hang to it!" she told him, and her use of his name was so natural neither noticed it as odd. "Sally needs a man! She's all loving protection for Baby. She worries about her. She works too hard and she—she ought to have a man to lean on!"

"Ain't you th' comfortin' sister!" cried Joe. "Sure she's crazy about you for cause! I am, myself! Put in th' good word for me, then. But let's go to surprise her—"

Kitty declined. She didn't want to meet Atlee there. Meet him she must—but not at Sally's. She had promised Sally and Baby to hear him, but in private—not with others.

Joe regretfully took her home, swearing eternal friendship, begging for her help with "The Queen" and generally disclosing himself as happy-go-lucky, filled with love for Sally, strong for all Sally's friends and overjoyed at being back in New York, where he could see her again.

Kitty held a long and serious consultation with herself after she arrived home. She laid all her cards on the table and stared at them. Then in shorthand she wrote down the facts as she knew them.

There is a leak in the office. Possible sources: Sally, who knows the business; Bridges, who knows the confidential letters I do take; Edith, queen of the files; Hilda, through whose hands—and ears—pass all the telephone messages of the office.

Reason for suspecting Sally and Atlee—none, except that both know Fatty Hemming, a stock broker, about whom Gordon Platt had asked.

Reason for suspecting Hattie Bridges—her nephew, Joe, who sells stock and bonds, knows Sally, Atlee and Baby. But Hattie only recently came with the firm. Letters dictated to Bridges must be uncertain source of sure tips on the stock market.

Reason for suspecting Edith—none, outside of opportunity.

Reason for suspecting Atlee—his unexplained hatred of Platt, and the same reasons which might, but didn't, apply to Sally.

"So much for so much!" Kitty said to herself, tearing up her notes in five pieces as soon as they were finished. "X's have been laid about Atlee and Gordon. I like them both; a lot. Atlee is beautiful to look at; Gordon is—Oh, he's a man! I've been warned against him. Atlee hates him. But it was Atlee, not Gordon, who laid violent hands on me," she blushed.

"One or the other—maybe both of them—may ask me to marry them, eventually," Kitty was trying to be honest with herself. She reddened a little at her apparent self-praise. "I love Sally. I like Bert Croymond and I want to like Baby. If she'll let me, I can't see anything wrong with Fatty Hemming! I like all my friends!"

If one of them is a chief—Gordon said stealing Mr. Goss' profits was as bad as stealing cash—then I want to know it. And—and—" This time there was no doubt of the blush.

"I want to stand well in Gordon's eyes. I'd like him to be pleased with me. I want him to like me. I want him to like me a lot! I—I— But here she shook her head to herself. "Now don't be foolish!" she admonished her dimpled image in her mirror.

"I just can't go on like this!" she said the words aloud. "I've got to know! I can't stand liking people and not knowing whether they are crooks or decent people! I don't believe it of Atlee or Fatty or great, big, beautiful, gorgeous Sally! But I've got to stand by Gordon—I've given my word—Oh, I have, even if he did take it for granted! I lied to him! He trusted me, and I lied to him."

"Very well, then! I've been half hearted about this. I've not really done anything. I've just pretended to look and listen and report. I've not told him what I really know, because I didn't want to make him suspect my friends, when I know they are innocent! That's why my conscience hurts me!"

"So from now on, Kitty Wilmot, you are going to hew to the line and do some real detective work! I don't really know anything about any of my friends, except that I love Sally and like the rest—but I don't know! I've got to find out. And I will find out! And—"

A knock on the door made her pause. She opened it to the maid. "You're wanted on the telephone, Miss Wilmot."

"At this hour?" Kitty looked at her watch. It was nearly midnight. "Who is it, do you know?"

ELECTION WEATHER IDEAL OVER STATE; TO PREVENT FRAUDS

rel, Dayton, and Herbert R. Cuyler, Cleveland, sought the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor. Former State Librarian John H. Newman, Columbus, was unopposed as the Democratic candidate for nomination as secretary of state.

There was no Democratic candidate for the short term as state treasurer.

Democratic candidates for attorney general were Samuel Burt, Cleveland Heights, and M. Ray Allison, Columbus.

Will P. Stephenson, West Union; Charles H. Hubbell, Cleveland, and Coleman Avery, Cincinnati, are candidates for the two Democratic nominations for state supreme judge.

The following Republican candidates have no opposition in today's primary: for governor, Governor Myers N. Cooper; for lieutenant governor, Lieut. Gov. John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg; for attorney general, Attorney General Albert Bettman; for state supreme judge, State Supreme Judges James E. Robinson, Marysville, and Reynolds R. Kinkade, Toledo; for state treasurer (short term): Assistant State Treasurer Edwin A. Todd, Springfield.

Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, Blanchester, seeking re-nomination in the Republican primary, is opposed by Edward J. Hummel, Cincinnati.

Observing his custom of marking his ballot in his home voting booth, rather than utilizing the absent voter's ballot, Governor Cooper was in Cincinnati today.

The prohibition issue occupied a conspicuous position during the pre-primary campaign.

Former Congressman Bulky as a candidate for the U. S. senatorial nomination, favored elimination of the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution and repeal of the Volstead act. Former State Representative Young, in his quest for the gubernatorial nomination, was credited with favoring the "wet" cause. Some Republicans as well as Democrats attacked prohibition.

The unemployment situation, the tariff, farm relief and attacks upon the Hoover and Cooper administrations featured campaigns waged by Democratic candidates.

Republican candidates defended the present national and state administrations.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 2—Special election deputies were on guard at voting booths in the twelfth ward, here today, following charges made by one of the candidates in the primary election, that an attempt might be made to stuff the ballot boxes.

The charges, according to election officials, were made to Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown by backers of Arthur H. Day, candidate for the Republican nomination for prosecutor. Brown ordered steps to be taken to guard the twelfth ward booths.

In a telephone message to officials here, Brown said it had been reported to him that loose ballots were being passed around in the ward and that it was suspected that attempts would be made to stuff the ballot boxes.

Out of the 175,000 eligible voters in Cuyahoga County, it was estimated that between 75,000 and 80,000 will pass through the polls today to select their party tickets for county offices, the state legislature, and state and congressional candidates.

The Republicans were expected to poll approximately 30,000. The Democratic vote was regarded as uncertain, although in view of the fact that a special appeal has been made to the liberal wet sentiment, it appeared probable that the party may cast from 30,000 to 35,000 votes.

The Theater

David P. Sentner, this column's New York correspondent, writes that the coming New York theater season is going to be politely wicked and that sex will be worn a few inches higher along Broadway if the opening play of the new season, "Ladies All," may serve as an indicator.

Interpreted by Elmer Harris, the witty Balkan diplomat, it substitutes a quadrangle for the proverbial triangle. There are three women and one man, but gosh, what a man.

Bob, the man, is a one-way street with the women. He is a shop girl's mid-summer dream and a correspondence course in polo pants for masculine persons who would hang a string of women around their necks.

Bob is like a cannon ball among ten pins when it comes to the fair.

Though he has never been able to make a comeback as an actor, Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle has found a place in the talkies. He is directing Lloyd Hamilton comedies for Educational Films. Previous to his present occupation he was comedy constructor for "The Cuckoos" at R-K-O.

Robert Woolsey, one of the stars of "The Cuckoos" was in the chemical department of the U. S. Army during the world war.

Dr. and Mrs. J. R. McCormick are the happy parents of a daughter who arrived at their home Wednesday.

D. W. Callahan, brother of W. E. Cox, Xenia, who has been publishing the West Alexandria Echo, has sold that paper and announces he will go to a larger field.

Dr. R. H. Grube and wife are spending a couple of weeks on northern lakes.

sex. He sings and their little hearts start rattling like a tri-motored plane. One glance from his flashing eyes and an Eskimo maid wraps herself in another fur coat. Aside from this son-of-a-fun with the ladies, there isn't anything in the play which is apt to affect international relations.

Violet Heming, in the role of a scyptress, does right brightly and Walter Woolf, as the big hearted man, plays his part like a gentleman and an actor. May Collins, who was once engaged to Charlie Chaplin and who was married the other day, is also in the cast.

Sentner says: "While the play never sinks into the trenches of smuttness it is nothing to go with the tune from the old church steeple."

Total expenditures for July for Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, amounted to $446.87, according to the monthly report compiled by Miss Emma F. Lyon, executive secretary of the local chapter. Other details of the report are as follows:

Office interviews with applicants in person, 112; by phone, four; office interviews with consultative in person, sixty-two; by phone, twenty-two; calls made on applicants in person, twenty-one; by phone, twelve; calls made in behalf of applicants in person, forty-five; by phone, sixty-eight; letters received, sixty-three; letters sent out, fifty-eight; relief in families, numbering eighty-seven; co-operating agencies, fifteen; Soldier cases brought forward this month, sixteen; civilian cases brought forward this month, sixty-eight; new and re-opened soldier cases, five; new and re-opened civilian cases, eight; soldier cases closed, six; civilian cases closed, thirteen; soldier cases open at end of month, fifteen; civilian cases open at end of month, sixty-three; soldier cases acted on during month, eight; civilian cases acted on during month, seventy-six.

The organization assisted one ex-serviceman in obtaining a loan on his federal adjusted compensation; served in four families with children in the county, where the wage earner was out of work. Twenty-three families were supplied with clothes, hats and shoes for adults and children from the supply closet. Food was supplied in sixteen families where men were out of work; three families where there was illness; two families where men were disabled to such an extent that they could not provide for their families; also six widows with large families were supplied with food.

Milk was sent every day to a tubercular patient and also a large family of children. Meals were provided for four men; two transients were supplied with clothing from the supply closet. A layette was provided for one mother by the organization. Six tonsilectomies were performed by Drs. Madden and Shields in behalf of the organization, on two children living in the county and four in Xenia. Medicine was purchased by the organization for two clients who were ill and unemployed at the time. Two children of city clients were given dental attention by Dr. A. B. Kester in co-operation with the organization.

One man who was stranded in the city overnight, with his family was given food by the organization. One transient and his wife who were stranded, in the city were materially aided by the organization, which also assisted a runaway girl who was stranded and in a destitute condition in Cedarville, to return to her home in Norfolk, Va.

The organization cooperated with the following outside agencies in its work during the month: The U. S. Veterans' Bureau, Cincinnati and Washington offices; American Red Cross, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; clerk of the county court, Fayetteville, Tenn.; American Red Cross, Norfolk, Va.; department of public welfare, Columbus and Associated Charities, Cincinnati.

The organization appreciated the co-operation of the following individuals in its work during the past month: Drs. Madden and Shields, Dr. W. T. Ungard, Dr. A. B. Kester, Mrs. Steele, Postage, Miss Anna Morrow, Mrs. O. H. McDonald, Mrs. Harry Whitmer, Mrs. Willard Bennington, Mrs. L. S. Hyman, Mrs. Karl Babb, Mrs. Earl Short, Mrs. Ralph Weaver and Mrs. Josephine Craig.

WIFE PLEADS FOR DIVORCE; TWO NOTE SUITS FILED HERE

Restoration to her maiden name is sought by Dorothy Cavender in a suit for divorce from Paul Cavender, filed in Common Pleas Court. The plaintiff charges gross neglect of duty. They were married October 11, 1929.

INSURANCE FIRM SUES
Two suits, seeking recovery of a total of $21,245.67, alleged due on notes, have been filed in Common Pleas Court by The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., Milwaukee, Wis., against Benna Myers. One suit is for $12,472.51 and the other asks $8,773.16. Foreclosure of mortgaged property is sought and the Commercial and Savings Bank, Xenia, claimed an interest in the property. It is named co-defendant. F. L. Bush is attorney for the insurance company.

NOTE SUIT FILED
Suit for $111.25, alleged due on a promissory note, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by G. B. Levalley against Levi Smith and Adda L. Smith. Attorney W. A. Paxson represents the plaintiff.

DIVORCE OBTAINED
On grounds of extreme cruelty William T. Bayles has obtained a divorce from Scott Bayles in Common Pleas Court and has been awarded custody of their children, Dorothy and Irene, with the defendant retaining the right to visit them at reasonable intervals.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT
A jury in Common Pleas Court returned a verdict favoring the plaintiff in the suit of George W. Daffern against A. K. Frederick, the case having been appealed from the court of S. H. Pierce, Bath Twp., justice of the peace.

WINS JUDGMENT
Mrs. Nettie Slanker has been awarded a cognovit note judgment for $218.59 against Paul Schmitt and Margaret Schmitt in Common Pleas Court.

NAMED ADMINISTRATRIX
Lesta M. Stephens has been appointed administratrix of the estate of Charles E. Spahr, late of Ross Twp., with bond of $1,000 in Probate Court. Otis Tobin, Clint Morrow and William Baker were named appraisers.

TO DISTRIBUTE ASSETS
Application of Casper B. Harner, as executor of the estate of D. S. Harner, deceased, to distribute certain assets of the estate, has been approved in Probate Court since all debts and the inheritance tax have been fully paid and the proposed distribution is satisfactory to all legatees and devisees under the will.

ESTATE VALUELESS
Estate of Ellen Alexander, deceased, is without net value, according to an entry filed in Probate Court. The gross value is placed at $1,300 but debts and the cost of administration jointly amount to $1,545.68.

AUTHORIZE PUBLIC SALE
Public sale of property re-appraised at $3,000 has been authorized in the case of Nellie Bunch, as executrix of the estate of Susan Mullen, deceased, against John Zellar, Sr., and others in Probate Court. Attempts to sell the property at both public and private sale failed because no bid was received equal to two-thirds of the appraised value. The court then ordered a re-appraisal.

EXTENSION GRANTED
William W. Hyslop, as executor of the estate of Eliza A. Hyslop Carruthers, deceased, has been granted a six-months extension of additional time for filing his account because of litigation now pending in Common Pleas Court making a distribution impossible until the litigation is settled.

ORDER SALE
Private sale of land has been authorized in Probate Court in the case of O. B. Kaufman, as guardian of Amos Harner, against the ward and others. The guardian's bond of $800 was approved by the court.

Blue Smackover

Near the Ouachita River in Southern Arkansas there is a little town called Smackover—a name now world famous because of the Crude Oils this field produces. These Crudes contain a high natural content of the so called aromatics naphthenes and unsaturates petroleum compounds which produces the desired anti-knock quality. This unusual gasoline COMBINES IN ONE MOTOR FUEL every desirable quality required by high compression motors and in addition contains the same quick starting and smooth operating characteristics that have popularized High Test Gasoline. The great power found in Smackover accounts not only for its remarkable anti-knock performance but likewise is responsible for considerably higher mileage yields per gallon.

MANY ISSUES CLAIM INTEREST AS FIVE STATES OPEN POLLS

Norris Battle Most Important Due To Federal Import

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The presidential race of 1928, prohibition, the world court, the power trust and local affairs were at issue today as the voters of Alabama, Arkansas, Nebraska, Ohio and Oklahoma, went to the polls to choose party candidates in state-wide primaries.

The outcome of senatorial contests in Nebraska and Arkansas may have far-reaching influence upon future federal legislation. In Nebraska, Senator George W. Norris (R), the veteran insurgent leader, seeks renomination, while in Arkansas, Senator Joe T. Robinson (D) minority leader of the senate, asks another term.

In Nebraska, the old guard Republicans have fought Norris for his insurgency, for his world court vote, and chiefly, for his bolt to Alfred E. Smith in 1928. A victory for Norris will solidify and encourage the western progressive group in the senate which has opposed administration programs for many years. His retirement would cripple this group and rob the insurgents of their leader.

In Arkansas, Robinson has strong opposition for the first time in his career. His opponent, Tom J. Campbell, an attorney, has sought Robinson's defeat because of his candidacy as vice presidential nominee on the Smith ticket two years ago, his vote for the world court, and his participation in drafting the London naval treaty.

Robinson is defeated under these circumstances, it might well change the course of the Democratic party on international issues.

In Alabama, Senator Tom J. Heflin stands on the sidelines barred from the primary while others fight for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Heflin will run as an independent in November. In the meantime, Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher and John H. Bankhead, son of the former senator, vie for the honor of opposing him. The chief issue is (Continued on Page Six)

MYSTERY FLAMES BURN TWO HOUSES

DELAWARE, O., Aug. 12.—Authorities today were attempting to determine the cause of a fire yesterday afternoon which destroyed the homes of two farmers living near Lewis Center, south of here, and caused $50,000 damage.

The blaze originated in a barn on the farm of W. P. Whittier. The flames quickly enveloped the house and several other buildings.

Pieces of burning shingles were carried a quarter of a mile by the wind yesterday afternoon, which destroyed the homes of two farmers living near Lewis Center, south of here, and caused $50,000 damage.

GRAND JURY HEARS CARROLL EVIDENCE

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The grand jury was scheduled today to hear evidence against Earl Carroll and three members of the cast in his current Broadway production. They are charged with giving an objectionable performance.

James P. Sinnott, deputy police commissioner, and Acting Captain James Coy, police censor, who conducted a raid on the show, were expected to be the chief witnesses.

MYSTERY DEATH

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Oliver Glenn Leach, wealthy president of a lumber and real estate company, was found shot to death today in his apartment at the Belmont Hotel. Police were unable to determine on a preliminary examination whether the death was a murder or suicide.

GAZETTE TO HOLD ELECTION PARTY

FILM ACTRESS SUES YEAST OFFICIAL

Charging that William N. Fleischmann, inset, 57-year-old director of a yeast corporation, promised to marry her and then cut her adrift while on a trip to Hawaii with only a ticket home, Madge Mitchell, above, film actress, has entered a $100,000 breach of promise suit against him at Los Angeles.

PLAY SILENTLY

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—If you must play in the wee small hours, don't call your shots. That was the edict of health commissioner Wynne today on miniature golf players. In the wake of many complaints that early morning noises on the Tom Thumb courses disturbed sleep, the commissioner ordered that courses might be kept open during the night but quiet must be maintained after 11 o'clock.

GRASS AND TIMBER SWEEP BY FLAMES

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12.—The prolonged drought which has caused considerable damage to crops in this vicinity, today had resulted in the destruction of 160 acres of grass and timber land which caught fire late yesterday, endangering homes and lives.

The fires occurred in Cleveland Heights and Dover Center where the grass and timber had become parched and tinder-dry as a result of the lack of rain. Three companies of firemen were necessary to prevent the spread of the flames to residences in the Cleveland Heights blaze.

Rain continued to be lacking as the mercury in Cleveland and vicinity dropped to new low levels for the month. The lowest point reached yesterday was 59 degrees, 12 below normal. The highest point was 67 degrees.

LINDBERGH'S IN AIR

TO RESUME STEEL MERGER CASE; RECESS WAS CAUSED BY DEATH

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 12.—Trial of the billion-dollar lawsuit over the merger of Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. with Bethlehem Steel Corporation was to be resumed in common pleas court here today following its suspension Monday for the funeral of Myron C. Wick, Jr., co-plaintiff in the case.

Bethlehem attorneys were expected to renew their attacks against the contention of Hessel Tiptitt of Ernst and Ernst, anti-merger accountants, that the terms of the Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem merger are unfair to Sheet and Tube stockholders. A. E. Ernst, head of Ernst and Ernst, will probably follow Tiptitt to the witness stand as an anti-merger witness. It was anticipated that he would corroborate and elaborate upon the testimony of Tiptitt, who declared last week that a "fair merger contract" would have been an exchange of 1.79 shares of Bethlehem for one share of Sheet and Tube, instead of the approved ratio of one and one-third for one.

Present indications are that the trial of the spectacular injunction suit will not be concluded before Labor Day.

SIX BANDITS STEAL TRUCK LOADED WITH POULTRY AND EGGS

Hi-Jackers Bind Two And Escape With $2,500 Loot

ELYRIA, O., Aug. 12.—Working with methodical swiftness, six highway robbers today held up a Cleveland poultry dealer and his assistant near here and escaped with a three-ton truck loaded with $2,500 worth of poultry and eggs.

The victims of the robbery, Morris Drucker, 33, of Cleveland, and his assistant, Joseph Winfield, 27, of Cleveland, were bound and gagged and left lying on the road.

Drucker and Winfield were en route from Findlay to Cleveland at the time of the holdup.

Drucker told authorities that he was stopped by a man in the road waving a red lantern. Two armed men, he said, jumped from the roadside and leaped on the running board of the truck.

The bandits hauled the two men from the cab of the truck and after binding them, drove off in the truck. One of the bandits, Drucker said, followed in a touring car which they had parked alongside the road.

Authorities said they believed the robbers may have been a gang of Cleveland whiskey hi-jackers who have turned to hi-jacking fruit and poultry as a "side-line."

A search dragnet was flung over this section of the state for the bandits by Sheriff Clarence Adams of Lorain County. Watch was being concentrated over small towns where the hi-jackers might attempt to dispose of their loot.

PRESIDENT'S TRIP ABANDONED RESULT OF DROUGHT RELIEF

Situation Results In Decision To Cancel Plans

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Because he was determined to continue personal direction of drought relief, President Hoover much-discussed trip to the National Parks of the Rocky Mountain region is about to be publicly abandoned.

For weeks, the executive has been juggling the advisability of making the vacation jaunt—political aspects being the factor which delayed the final decision.

The crisis in twelve states where crops have failed and farmers face the prospect of calling upon the Red Cross for personal relief this fall and winter, however, definitely has cast the die against the trip west.

Mr. Hoover built his reputation on relief work, first in China, later in Belgium, as food administrator, and, more recently, in the Mississippi flood area. It is work at which he has proven himself peculiarly adept, and he feels he would remiss in his duties to the nation as president if he departed on an extended pleasure trip while such an emergency as the President drought presents existed. He will remain in, or close to Washington and take personal charge of the government's efforts to afford the stricken sections succor.

There is even a likelihood the president may make at least a partial inspection of the drought area if conditions continue to grow worse. He has made no plans to do so far, but when he took over flood relief in 1927 as secretary of commerce under President Coolidge, he made innumerable trips to the Mississippi and spent many weeks at the scene of actual suffering. This has been his policy whenever he has taken over such work.

Many of those close to him predicted Mr. Hoover would go no farther away from Washington than his mountain camp on the Rapidan River. Here, he could even remain ten days or two weeks and still be in closest touch with the situation. He has instant telephonic communication with the White House and all government departments, and it is only a matter of several hours' motor ride for any of his aides to reach there with personal reports.

AMPLE FOOD SUPPLY BUT CITY DWELLERS FACE HIGHER COSTS

This Problem Facing Hoover In Relief From Drought

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The nation's supply of human food is ample for the fall and winter but city dwellers may pay more for it.

There is enough feed for livestock if properly distributed, but farmers in several states face ruin and relief appears necessary to prevent actual physical suffering.

This was the situation confronting President Hoover and his advisers today as the chief executive prepared for a conference of governors on Thursday and a meeting with heads of national farm organizations a day later.

There was sharp disagreement among the president's advisers and official agencies over the seriousness of the prolonged dry spell from a national standpoint.

With prices of food mounting in New York and other cities, the department of agriculture hurried to assure the country that the combined production of human food will be near the average of the last five years.

At the same time, Chairman John Barton Payne of the Red Cross had presented a pessimistic report from state chapter heads which indicated relief must be afforded in nine or ten states to prevent privation.

Though Secretary of Agriculture Hyde said on Saturday that every man, woman and child in the country would feel the consequences of the drought, other advisers of the president held the chief damage would be confined to a few states.

Vice-chairman James C. Stone of the federal farm board said the worst feature of the situation is "psychological."

"Many people have lost hope, when they should not," he said. "If we could have a good soaking rain for twenty-four hours, the picture would not look so bad."

The farm board is planning much hope upon the feeding of wheat to replace corn and oats. The entire wheat crop is forecast at $21,000,000 bushels, which is 1.8 per cent above the 1929 crop. With a big surplus of wheat already on hand, diversion of 100,000,000 bushels to feeding livestock would do much to right the agricultural situation, board members say.

The corn crop, however, has been dealt a heavy blow by the drought. The indicated production on August 1, according to the department of agriculture, is 2,212,000,000 bushels, lowest since 1901. A further decrease of 100,000,000 bushels has taken place since Aug. 1, it was estimated.

Crop prospects for the nation as a whole, however, declined but seven per cent in July, according to estimates.

FIRE FORCES FIFTY TO LEAVE BUILDING

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12.—Fifty persons were forced into the street here today when a three-alarm fire swept the four-story Rutherglen Apartments in west Cleveland and caused slight damage to adjacent structures.

The blaze was believed to have started in a paper chute on the top story of the apartment. Firemen were able to salvage only a little furniture from the upper floors of the building.

ATTEMPTS RESCUE; SEVERELY STABBED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 12.—Thomas Halek of Painesville, was reported to be in a serious condition in Lakeside Hospital today, suffering from a knife wound which he received while attempting to aid an intoxicated man. He saw being robbed last night.

One of the robbers stabbed Halek with a pocket knife, the victim told police. Halek was wounded in the abdomen.

ANNOUNCE RETURNS BY PUBLIC ADDRESS SYSTEM ON TUESDAY

Everyone Invited To Attend Broadcast; Starts At 7:30

The Gazette's election night radio party, a popular custom since its inauguration by this paper a dozen years ago, will be revived for Tuesday night's primary election returns.

A brand-new and improved system of broadcasting, however, will replace that used in other years.

Tonight the new Public Address System, recently purchased by the Gazette for news broadcasts, and used for the first time at the county fair last week, where it was extremely popular, will be employed to broadcast election returns.

The system consists of a sixteen-tube amplifying system, connected with three huge speakers. These speakers will be placed in three windows in the front of the Gazette Bldg., directly over the business office of The Gazette, facing Detroit Street.

Crowds on the sidewalks or in the street within a block of the building, will be able to hear the broadcast information easily in all directions. It is believed. Returns on the state primary contests of both parties will be broadcast direct from the office of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, picked up and amplified by the system here, and given to the election crowd through the huge loud-speakers.

At thirty minute intervals when the state returns are not being given, returns from the Greene County vote, tallied and tabulated in the Gazette editorial department, will be put on the air for the crowd by means of a microphone in the editor's office. When no returns are available the program of one of the regular radio stations will be used over the system to keep the crowd in a good humor.

This mammoth new Public Address System of the Gazette's is in charge of and operated by Harry Hagler, radio expert, of near Xenia and the system was thoroughly tested as a means of making public outdoor announcements, during the fair last week. It is believed it will prove to be the most satisfactory system for announcing election returns ever employed here.

Immediately following the closing of giving election returns here tonight, the equipment will be dismantled and taken to Washington C. H. where Mr. Hagler will install and operate it for the Fayette County Fair Board at its fair starting Wednesday. Following the Fayette County Fair the equipment will go to London where the Madison County Fair Board has employed it for next week.

The election party tonight starts as soon as the first returns are available, which will probably be about 7:30 o'clock, and will continue as long as any interesting contests are in doubt.

FILM STAR PLEADS FOR AUTO THIEF

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 12.—Despite the tears of Maureen O'Sullivan, young Irish film star, Harry O. Billhart, who took her automobile without her consent, today was under sentence of one to five years in Folsom Penitentiary.

After Miss O'Sullivan tearfully begged a jury not to send young Billhart to the penitentiary, the jurors acquitted him of a charge of stealing the car, but found him guilty of taking it without permission. Superior Judge Miller imposed the penitentiary sentence.

JACKSON AND O'BRIEN WITHIN ONE DAY OF REGAINING CROWN

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 12.—Dale "Red" Jackson and Forrest O'Brien, seeking in their monoplane "Greater St. Louis" to recapture the refueling endurance record wrested from them by the Hunter brothers, of Sparta, Ill., today were within one day of their objective.

The mark set by the Hunter brothers was 564 hours. At 9:52 a. m. (C. S. T.) tomorrow, Jackson and O'Brien will have exceeded the Hunters' record by the one hour (required by the rules of the Na-

CRASH VICTIMS

These two sisters, Eugenia Laws, top, and Mary, below, are victims of Chicago's oddest plane crash. They were passengers on a private plane which plunged into the water pit of a gas tank, killing the two girls and the pilot, who had just gotten his license a short time before.

AGED WOMAN ADMITS MURDER OF HUSBAND

McARTHUR, O., Aug. 12.—Mrs. Josie Napper, 60, was held in the Vinton County Jail here today on a charge of first-degree murder for the slaying of her husband, Jasper Napper, 71.

The brutal killing occurred yesterday, Sheriff Ray Cox said, at the Napper home at Hawk Station, near Wellston. The sheriff said Mrs. Napper admitted to him that she struck her husband over the head three times with the ax as he slept in his bed. The aged man's head was split.

Sheriff Cox said the woman had declared she killed Napper because he had been going out with other women and girls.

Mrs. Napper was to be arraigned today on the murder charge.

PATROL CHINATOWN AFTER TONG MURDER

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Fearing a renewal of tong warfare, police squads were patrolling the Chinatown district today following the fatal shooting of George Moe, said to have been a deserter from the Hip Sing tong.

Moe's death was interpreted as a possible warning to other deserters from the Hip Sing ranks. Many Hip Sings recently have gone over to the On Leong tong, according to Chinatown reports.

Fifteen Chinese were arrested in the vicinity of the murder last night and were held for questioning.

SEVERE TYPHOON IS RAGING IN JAPAN

LONDON, Aug. 12.—One of the most severe typhoons in the history of Japan is raging throughout Kyushu. It was reported in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokyo today.

Heavy damage was reported at Nagasaki, but the disruption of communication facilities prevented any details of the disaster from reaching Tokyo.

The Democratic aspirants for the state treasurership were: Hanley W. Cone, Chillicothe; W. V. Goshorn, Gallatin; William J. Hiler, Columbus; and Joseph T. Ferguson, Lancaster.

Former congressman George White, Marietta, and former state representative Stephen M. Young, Cleveland Heights, were making the race for the Democratic nomination for governor. Former Lieutenant Governor William G. Fick-

ELECTION WEATHER IDEAL OVER STATE; TO PREVENT FRAUDS

Attempt To Stuff Ballot Boxes Is Investigated

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 12.—Ohio Democrats and Republicans today were selecting their state, congressional, legislative, judicial and county tickets. They, also, were electing the members of their respective state and county central committees.

With ideal election weather prevailing throughout the Buckeye state, the primary election booths opened for business at 6:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time. The voting will end at 6:30 p. m., or as soon thereafter as the last voter who was in line when 6:30 arrives has cast his or her ballot.

The nominees chosen today will enter the regular fall campaign which will end at the November election. Nominations were being made for governor, lieutenant governor, United States senator, secretary of state, state treasurer, attorney general, two judges of the Ohio supreme court, members of the Ohio senate and house of representatives, congressmen, appellate court judges, common pleas judges, county commissioners, county auditor, prosecuting attorney, sheriff, county recorder, county treasurer and coroner.

The election returns will be broadcast tonight over stations WLW, Cincinnati, and WAU, Columbus, direct from Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown's office in the statehouse.

In view of reports alleging election frauds in various parts of the state, Secretary Brown was co-operating today with county election boards in an effort to insure an honest election. For the most part, these reports are of a relatively minor nature.

The most serious complaint came from Cleveland where it was charged plans were on foot to stuff ballot boxes. Friends of former State Senator Arthur H. Day, Cleveland, Republican, a candidate for prosecuting attorney of Cuyahoga County, told of an alleged scheme on the part of supporters of George B. Harris to stuff ballot boxes in the twelfth ward. Harris, also, is a candidate for the G. O. P. nomination for prosecutor.

The secretary of state's office was informed that precinct workers in fronton were furnished with rubber stamps bearing a name not on the printed ballot, with an "X" at the left, and that these stamps were to be used by voters in support of a candidate for county central committee.

One candidate for coroner at Columbus charged that the designation "M. D." had been printed illegally on the ballots at the end of the name of another candidate for coroner.

Estimates by election experts as to the number of Ohio voters who will go to the polls today vary from 640,000 to 750,000. There are approximately 2,000,000 eligible voters in the Buckeye State.

These experts estimated, also, that of the 22 to 25 per cent of Ohio voters participating in today's primaries, about 500,000 are Republicans and 250,000 are Democrats.

The secretary of state's office estimated that there are 8,987 precincts in Ohio, compared with 9,116 precincts at the last general election.

Aside from the interest aroused by reasons of regional contests for county legislative and judicial offices, the voters were focusing their attention upon the Democratic races for United States Senator and state treasurer and upon the G. O. P. contest for state treasurer.

Of the thirty-one candidates for places on the state tickets nineteen are Democrats and twelve are Republicans.

The candidates for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator were: William W. Durbin, Kenton; John McKeown, Wooster; George S. Myers, East Cleveland; Robert J. Bulkey, Cleveland; Charles V. Truax, Bucyrus.

United States Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch, Canton, Republican candidate to succeed himself, has no opposition in the primary.

Republican candidates for state treasurer include State Treasurer H. Ross Ake, Canton; former State Treasurer Harry S. Day, Sandusky; and Mrs. Pauline Buckley, Dayton, wife of former State Treasurer Bert B. Buckley.

The Democratic aspirants for the state treasurership were: Hanley W. Cone, Chillicothe; W. V. Goshorn, Gallatin; William J. Hiler, Columbus; and Joseph T. Ferguson, Lancaster.

Former congressman George White, Marietta, and former state representative Stephen M. Young, Cleveland Heights, were making the race for the Democratic nomination for governor. Former Lieutenant Governor William G. Fick-

English Type House -- Garage Important Element

How Old Is This House?

Careful Preservation of This Home Proves Merit of Keeping Your Home in Good Repair.

Here is an interesting way to test your knowledge of building. Study the house shown in the accompanying illustration, then estimate its age. People who have seen this picture have guessed the house to be all the way from eight to 125 years old. This wide difference of opinion is due to the fact that this building typifies a Colonial design that is popular today.

It was the home of Jonathan Harrington, first man killed in the American Revolution. He was a native of Lexington, Mass., and was mortally wounded during the fighting that took place on Lexington common. By an heroic effort he managed to make his way to the door of his home. Just as his wife opened the door he fell dead.

Now here is a chance to test your knowledge of American History. In order to determine the approximate age of this house, which was the home of a full-grown man at the time of the Revolutionary War, you may have to consult your history books, or ask some child of school age.

The house has been very carefully preserved, because of its unusual historical interest, but what has been done in this building can be done by practically any home owner who wants to maintain his dwelling in as good condition as the day it was built, simply by making minor repairs or replacements the moment they are needed. A well-built home, put on honest foundations, and in good taste at the time it was built, should not "wear out." What is more important, an old dwelling can not only be kept up, but by making use of the services and materials available in the yard of your retail lumber dealer, can have the appearance and all the conveniences of a new house.

Your lumber dealer can show you why it pays to "Keep Your Home in Good Repair," and can show you why this is a good time to have repair work done. Lumber and other building materials are cheaper than they have been for years, and there are experienced, dependable men ready to help you with the more difficult jobs you cannot do alone.

Make a systematic check-up and see what repairs are needed. The back porch is a good place to begin. See that steps and railings are strong and securely fastened, especially if you have children who play about the yard or climb on the porch. Look over your screens and screen doors to see that they are unbroken and fly-tight. See whether parts of the house need paint or varnish to protect them from weathering, scuffing feet, or the touch of sweaty hands. See that under parts of the house, especially beneath enclosed porches, have enough ventilation to prevent dry rot. Sprung or broken doors should be repaired or replaced. Many homes need additional shelving for closets, fruit cellars or lost by spoilage. By installing an electric refrigerator, the purchaser not only constitutes a saving, but insures the health and happiness of his family against spoiled foods for all time."

SAFE DAMAGED BY YEGGS; NO MONEY STOLEN

Yeggs who entered the office of the F. A. Allen combination hardware store and grain elevator on E. Main St. in Cedarville Monday night succeeded in damaging a large safe, which, if they had only known it, had been left unlocked, but obtained little of value for their trouble.

The intruders knocked the combination off the safe, which contained no money and was always left unlocked. One of the inside drawers, which was locked as it contained documents valuable only to the owner, was broken open and the papers were carried away. Four boxes partly filled with cigars were also stolen from a cigar case.

Entrance to the office was gained through a side window by the scales, the marauders pulling bars loose and breaking the window pane.

The business was formerly the Cedarville Farmers' Grain Co., a co-operative concern, and was acquired by Mr. Allen last June 14, 1929.

Sheriff Ohmer Tate made an investigation Tuesday morning after the robbery was discovered.

HEALTH FEATURES SELL ELECTRIC REFRIGERATORS

The electric refrigerator is probably more capable of increasing the health and happiness of the American family, than any other recent invention for the household.

A few years ago little thought was given to refrigeration by home-makers. Almost any nook or corner, cooler, in even the slightest degree, than the outside temperature was deemed a satisfactory storage place for even the most perishable of foods.

This belief has been disproved by the scientists and bacteriologists in the employ of the manufacturers of electric refrigerators.

One of their first discoveries was that harmful bacteria developed with great rapidity in foods stored in a temperature above 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

"Destructive bacteria is present in foods at all times," he continued, "and it requires only warmth and moisture to develop it. The growth of this bacteria causes mold, which if consumed, may result in serious ailments."

"It is necessary, therefore, that food be stored in a temperature ranging between 40 and 50 degrees Fahrenheit until used."

"The majority of the people now realize these facts, which in addition to the convenience and utility of electric refrigeration accounts for its tremendous acceptance in a few years time."

"A good electric refrigerator will pay for itself in a short time by the food saving and convenience it makes possible. In the average home, approximately 10 to 15 per cent of the foods purchased are

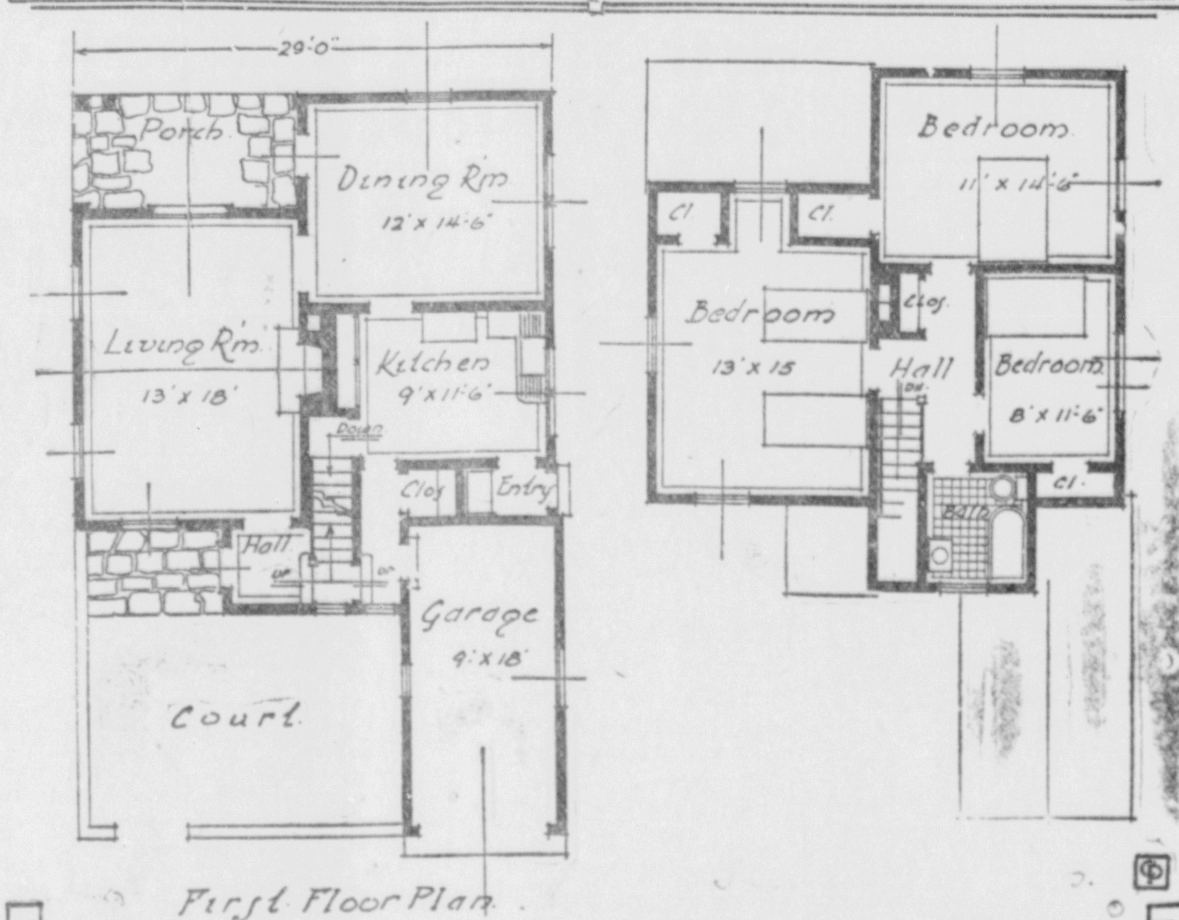

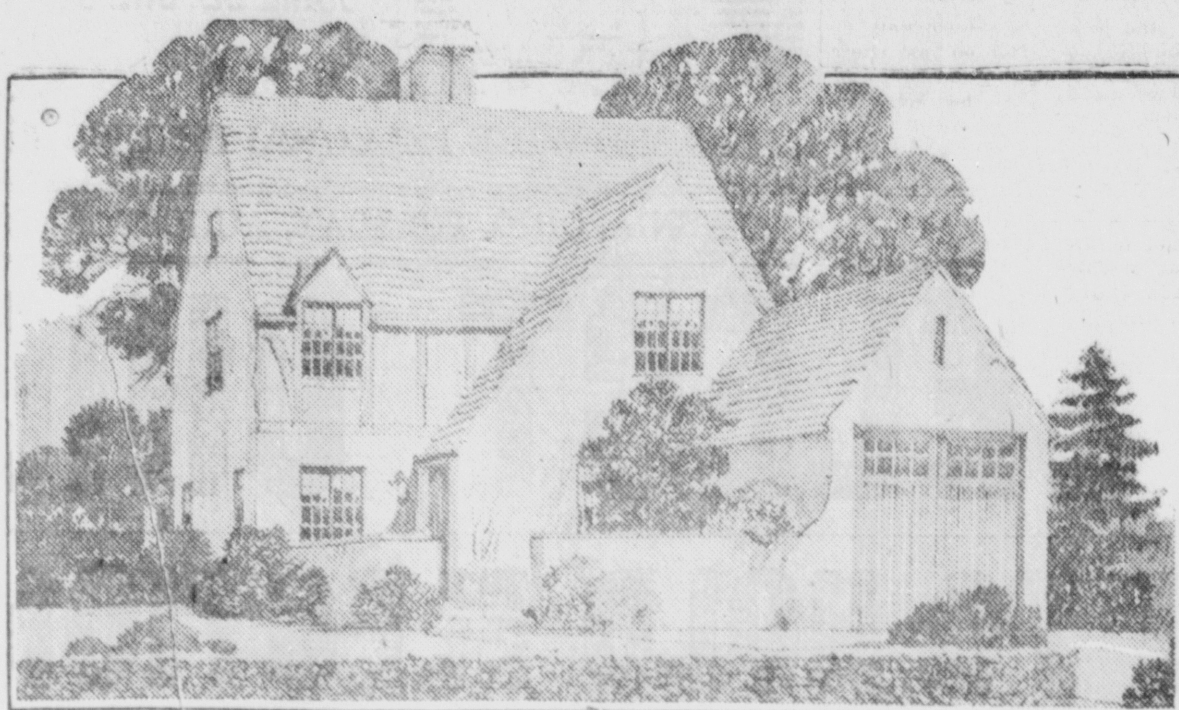

YOUTH SENTENCED TO REFORMATORY

Indicted by the grand jury in July for the theft of 320 pounds of copper wire valued at $70 from the Pennsylvania Railroad, Otis Shearer, 19, this city, pleaded guilty to a grand larceny charge and was sentenced to from one to seven years in the Mansfield state reformatory by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Monday. The theft occurred last May 25, James R. Pierce, indicted jointly with Shearer on the same charge, was turned over to Dayton authorities who had a prior claim upon him, it became known.

MISS JULIA SHULL CLAIMED BY DEATH

Relatives in Xenia have received word of the death of Miss Julia Shull, formerly of Cedarville, which occurred at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Hannaberry, in Albany, Ind., last week. Miss Shull was ninety-four years of age and infirmities of age and complications was the cause of death. Miss Shull formerly lived in Cedarville, moving from there to Indiana fifty years ago.

Mrs. Margaret Rickett, S. King St., Mrs. W. C. Horner, N. West St., and Mrs. Margaret Brown, Springfield Pike, are nieces of Miss Shull, who survive.

More and more the garage is being made an important element in the design of the small house. Whereas formerly storage space for the automobile was provided in an outside building, it is now often parked right inside the house. In the house pictured the garage is incorporated in the house itself. The house is of the modified English type, built of stucco with an insert of half timber. It has casement windows and gables, and the cubical contents are estimated as 20,000 cubic feet, costing $10,000. The living room overlooks the stone flagged entrance way, and a semi-enclosed porch also laid with flagstones. A door from the dining room opens on this porch. The master's bedroom runs the full width of the house, and there is plenty of closet space. Prepared for Central Press by Architectural Research Bureau, The American Home Magazine.

Every House Has 'Em!

Roland Young and Dorothy Sebastian in a scene from "The Unholy Night," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture

A creaking stair! A thump in the basement! A hasty search in a dark closet, or maybe in the attic. The whole family is disturbed.

They are ghosts—real ones—ghosts of things we "intend" to do around the house.

Father needs more head room in the basement; the kitchen sink is too low; mother wants shelving in an upstairs closet; a window in the attic—there is a broken railing on the porch; a loose, creaking tread on the stairs.

Then one day comes the sound of a hammer and saw. Presto! The ghosts are laid and the whole family is glad.

Now is the time to fix up your house and do the things you have talked about doing. Building materials are cheaper than they have been for years, and you can get experienced, dependable men to help you with the more difficult jobs

Announcement was made Tuesday of the purchase of the National Feed Mill at Yellow Springs by L. D. Welch, prominent farmer, near that village. Mr. Welch purchased the mill from C. L. McGuinn, Yellow Springs, who has owned and operated it for the past year, having purchased it from the National Feed Mill Co., at that time and continued to operate it under that firm's name. Mr. Welch, who has been in the coal business in Yellow Springs and also farms near that village will not take possession of the mill until September 1. The mill was built in 1900 and has been operated since that time. A fire in 1923 partly destroyed part of the mill and instead of rebuilding that part destroyed a coal silo was erected in its place. Mr. McGuinn has not announced his plans for the future after Mr. Welch takes possession.

WAS MISERABLE UNTIL KONJOLA RELIEVED HIM

Another Victory Over Stubborn Case That Had Resisted Every Medicine Tried.

Many of the victories scored by Konjola are so remarkable that they might challenge belief were the actual facts not known and verified. Take, for instance, the experience of Mr. Milo Gumbert, 733 Marshall Avenue, Youngstown, Ohio, who declares:

"I suffered from stomach and kidney troubles, and was most miserable. Food soured in my stomach, and I had headaches and dizzy spells. Nothing I tried helped me, and I was discouraged. But Konjola triumphed where other treatments failed. My appetite is fine; headaches, backache, and dizzy spells are gone. My kidneys are normal and I feel like a different man. Konjola certainly proved to be a master medicine in my case."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve deadening drugs, no heart depressing chemicals. It needs no such ingredients. It is powerful in the ill of the aged, yet may be given to the infant.

Konjola is a new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs long known for their medicinal value. Konjola works quickly and thoroughly at the very root, the lout of the ill of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. Konjola is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but to bring new, glorious and lasting health.

Konjola is sold in Xenia, Ohio at the Gallaher Drug Store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

PRIMARY VOTE HERE ABOVE NORMAL NOON SURVEY INDICATES

Fair weather and keener interest than usual in local contests for the Republican nomination for county offices was bringing out a fairly heavy primary vote, perhaps somewhat above normal, in Xenia's fourteen precincts Tuesday.

A survey at noon indicated that in Xenia nearly half the total expected vote had been recorded during the morning hours. The feminine voters turned out in unexpectedly large numbers before noon.

A check made of five precincts showed the voting on the Democratic ticket was practically negligible, there being no contests for this party's nominations for county offices.

Only seventeen Democratic votes had been cast as compared with more than 400 Republican ballots.

The noon survey Tuesday disclosed these figures:

Precinct	Rep.	Dem.	Pos.
No. 5	137	5	400
No. 8	120	5	250
No. 9	101	7	250
Xenia Twp. (S. E.)	35	0	115
Xenia Twp. (north)	50	0	100

Dr. Homer Smith, BROTHER OF XENIA MAN, DIES MONDAY

Relatives here received word Tuesday morning of the death of Dr. Homer Smith, 75, which occurred at his home in Los Angeles, Calif., Monday night at 9 o'clock. Cause of death was not learned.

Dr. Smith practiced for a number of years in Middletown and also in Westerville after which he went to the Isle of Pines where he operated a large citrus fruit plantation. He had resided in Los Angeles for the last ten years having retired from his medical practice a number of years ago.

Dr. Smith is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Mary Kendall, this city; a son, Homer, Jr., and a grandson, of Los Angeles, Judge H. L. Smith, Union St., this city is a brother of Dr. Smith and he is also survived by a sister, Dr. Eva C. Smith, Middletown.

Details of burial were not received by relatives but it is thought that it will take place in Los Angeles.

UTAH FLOODS CAUSE $100,000,000 LOSS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 2. An estimate today placed the damage from flood water which raged through Salt Lake valley yesterday, causing residents to flee for their lives before the onrushing water, at approximately $100,000,000.

A score of families narrowly escaped with their lives when the roaring water washed at 50,000-ton copped dump into a gulch within a stone's throw of the residential section of Bingham, picturesque one-street mining town, thirty miles from here.

Built along the walls of a narrow canyon, above which the Utah Copper Company operates the largest open hearth mine in the world, Bingham was the heaviest sufferer from the flood. Damage there was estimated at $500,000 by town authorities.

Houses were washed away or damaged when a wall of water swept from a nearby canon through Centerville on the Ogden-Salt Lake City Highway. Live stock, farm implements and hay were carried away and a member of the household of David Smith, whose home was washed away, was reported missing.

FAMOUS "SHUT-IN" DIES IN WARREN, O.

WARREN, O., Aug. 2.—Miss Theodosia Haine, 66, prominently the world's most noted "shut-in" is dead here today after forty-six years of conducting vigorous religious and social services from the famous "sunshine corner" at her home.

Confined to her bed since she was twenty years of age, at which time she injured her hip, Miss Haine worked up a letter-writing service by which she attempted to bring happiness to thousands of persons who were more unfortunate than herself.

Her home was the mecca of hundreds of visitors from all parts of the world who brought her gifts and curios. Her visitors called her room the "sunshine corner."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SELF-SEEKERS EXPOSED—Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?—Matthew 7:15, 16.

INFLUENCED WASHINGTON

An entire room, the "great chamber" of Gilling castle, Yorkshire, England, has just been purchased by a New York dealer who hopes that it will later be acquired by some museum in America. Magnificently paneled, adorned with a profusion of heraldic designs, with three stained glass windows in excellent color and design, this noted Elizabethan room has associations with the early history of the American colonies by reason of its ownership, centuries ago, by ancestors of the Fairfax family of Virginia. The arms on the principal panel are those of Sir William Fairfax, whose name instantly suggests that of George Washington.

The influence of the Fairfax family on the life of young Washington, has been noted by his biographers. In 1748 the Lord Fairfax of that day, who had inherited vast holdings in Virginia, supervised for him by his cousin, William, came to visit America. At the age of 16 years Washington was living with his older step-brother, Lawrence, at Mt. Vernon, near Belvoir, the Fairfax mansion. In neighborly fashion the lad was taken fox hunting by the 60-year-old peer, who also sent Washington with a surveying party under George William Fairfax, son of William, eight years older than Washington, but destined to be his life-long friend. A year later, once more through the interest of Lord Fairfax, Washington was made a county surveyor at a salary of approximately $600 a year. Lord Fairfax had meanwhile built Greenway Court on a 10,000-acre estate in the Shenandoah valley, where Washington often visited him and browsed in his well-stocked library. But about this same time the marriage of George William Fairfax to Sally Cary, whose father had an estate on the James river not too distant from Williamsburg, brought into Washington's life the person who was to make him realize that he had fallen in love with his best friend's wife. From "Love Stories of Famous Virginians," Rupert Hughes quotes: "After Sally married Fairfax, Washington was frequently at Belvoir and Mrs. Fairfax became his patron and instructress in the fine arts of courtesy and good breeding, while her brain, in its strength and flowering, matched his. She rounded the angles of this sturdy, remarkable young man, and gave him the rare opportunity of mingling with the essence of refinement and culture."

Nothing so illustrates the restraint imposed upon human nature by colonial standards of morals and good breeding than the eventual decision of Washington to bury his hopeless passion deep in his heart. Many men before him and since his time have fallen in love with the wives of their best friends, as many women have loved their friends' husbands. But in an era of trial marriage and easy divorce, the situations are often handled differently. It should be no shock to discover that Washington was human enough to love a woman who could never be his, since the very proof of his greatness lay in the manner in which he resolutely ordered his life in the light of so bitter a disappointment.

SUMMER EFFORTS FOR PROGRESS

As the summer time continues, it becomes more difficult to carry on organization work. But our efforts to make a finer community here should not be relaxed.

If it is too fine outdoors to go to some organization or other important meeting, the beauty of the bright weather should make it just the time to make needed improvements about our home places. It should be just as much pleasure to make our home places shine, as to engage in some sport. The beauty of nature about us, should inspire us to make our homes more beautiful. We should be ashamed to tolerate any ugliness or disorder, when nature around us is so inspiring.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WHAT DO YOU LIKE?

Children in a Scotch town, asked what kind of movies they like best, give astonishing answers. Ninety-eight per cent of the boys voted for "love films." Ninety-four per cent of the girls wanted war, murder, fighting. You never can tell.

WE DON'T FOOL THEM

Here is a man with a sense of humor, and not afraid to face facts. Says G. O. Myers, Cleveland educator, "We must at times seem very funny to our children. We parents often take ourselves too seriously out our children don't. They must often laugh to themselves at our eccentricities and egotisms. We are always right and they are always wrong."

"We consider it quite proper to be rude to them, to interrupt them, to contradict them and talk back to them; but they had better look out if they try to do the same toward us."

We don't own children. They are human beings, to be treated as such, given credit for what they know and what they try to do. Only the man who has never made a mistake has a right to expect his child to be as good as that.

THE FORCE OF PICTURES

Hays, picture boss, sees films, distributed all over the world, breaking down the barriers between nations. We will get acquainted with each other through motion pictures. Let Germans, Frenchmen, Americans laugh with each other instead of at each other and we will get along.

HORNS

New York begins a drive on unnecessary noise from auto horns. The idea is to have a horn that will give adequate warning without nerve-racking din. Why not drive on the too long horns in a long line-up?

POWER

Matter, made up of atoms, is full of power. For atoms are in motion, whirling at terrific speed. Release the power of the atom and there would be enough energy in a drop of water to furnish 200-horsepower for a year, says E. O. Eddington, Cambridge university scientist. But to get out the power it would be necessary to heat matter up to 40,000,000 degrees. So far laboratories have produced only a little warmth—a mere matter of a million degrees.

HARD DRINKING

The liquor business was always bad enough but the poison business is worse.

THE QUESTION BOX

What is meant by an air pocket?
The evenness of air while flying varies with the temperature. If the air is warm, or what is called thin air, it is difficult to gain altitude. In cold or dense air it is easy to gain altitude. The air over cities is warmer than that over the surrounding country. It is when a flyer approaches warmer air that the plane has a tendency to lose altitude. In some places a change from cold to warm air is very abrupt. This is known as an air pocket or bumpy air.

Venice

How far from the mainland is the city of Venice, Italy, situated?
The city is two and one-half miles from the mainland, and is connected by railroad bridges of 222 arches.

Stage Directions

In reading stage directions, on which side is the right center?
Directions on the stage are always considered from the spectators' angle. Thus the right center would be at the spectators' right.

Classical Music

What is classical music?
It is defined as standard music; music of first rank, written by composers of the highest order; music whose form and style have been accepted as suitable for a model to composers.

Highest Priced Coin

What is the greatest amount ever paid for an old coin in the United States?

The highest figure paid in this country was for a privately-minted $5 gold piece issued in California in 1849, during the gold fever period. The price was $7,900 paid by a Philadelphia dealer for a private collector. The coin was minted for the Massachusetts and California companies, and bears on its face a shield on which is depicted a cowboy throwing a lariat with a bear and deer at either side.

Peter Versus Paul

What is the derivation of the expression "robbing Peter to pay Paul?"

It had its origin in the rivalry between St. Peter's cathedral, now Westminster abbey, and St. Paul's cathedral, in London. In 1550 an appropriation was made from St. Peter's to make up for a deficit in the account of St. Paul's. The action met with opposition, the question being asked, "Why rob St. Peter to pay St. Paul?"

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK—Over near the Harlem river there's a little Chinese laundry with a red stucco facade. The proprietor's name is Jo Wing. He tells me he went to Yale. He has a wide, yellow-and-red striped awning, a cat and a canary, grows lilacs in a blue box with pebbles, and the day I met up with him he was occupying a kitchen chair tilted back of the counter in his shop, smoking a cigarette and reading "The Dissenting Opinions of Mr. Justice Holmes."

SNOBISH CLERKS
It isn't pleasant to shop on Fifth avenue in the good old summertime. The clerks, while not discourteous, don't seem to be able to muster much respect for anyone who lingers in town during the heated term. They look at you as much as to say: "If you really amounted to anything you wouldn't be here at this time of the year."

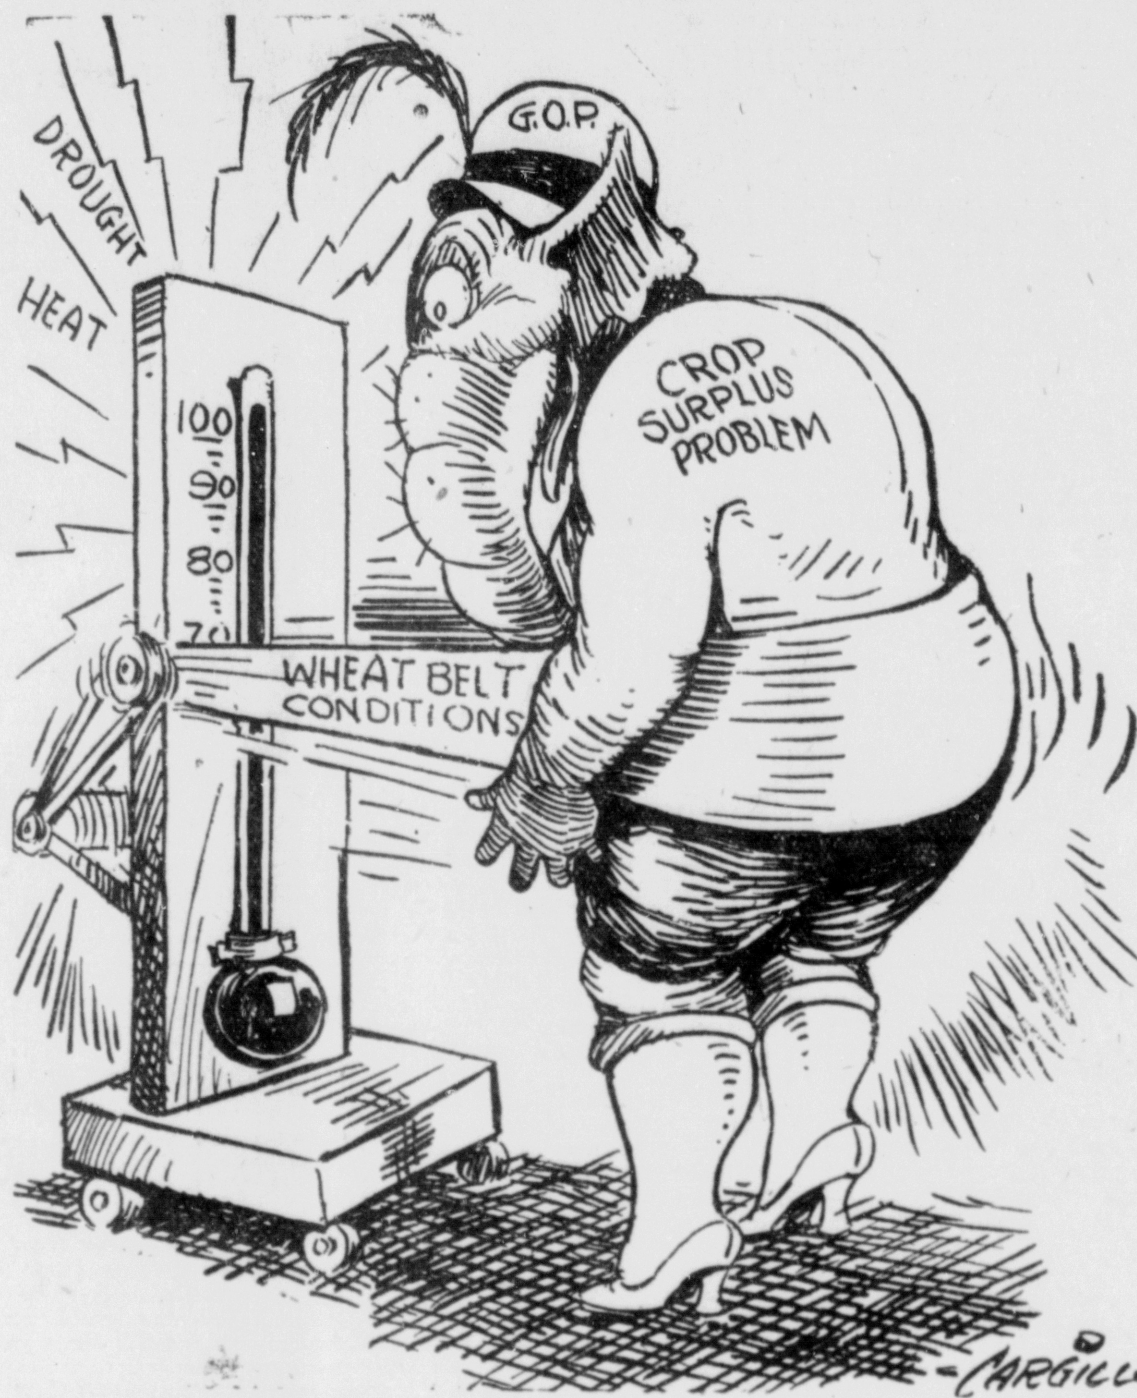

HAVE A HEART!
The weather bureau in New York is situated on top of a downtown skyscraper. Naturally it's cooler there than down on the street, with the asphalt drawing and holding the fire of the sun. When you're tramped through the city all day with the mercury sizzling somewhere around the century mark, it's disconcerting to pick up your morning newspaper and find that yesterday's "official" temperature was only 89.

It's all right to be optimistic about business conditions; but when the weather's hot, it's hot and there's no use in lying about it.

SPEAKING OF ART
The world's worst aggregation of statuary is to be found in Central Park. They've been there a long time. How some of them ever got there at all is a mystery. The funniest one of the bunch is that of Bobby Burns. He's squatted in an arm chair of heroic proportions, a wad of manuscript on his lap. His right mitt, dangling across the arm of the chair, clutches a quill. His head is thrown back, his mouth is open, his glance sketched on the cerulean blue. The artist intended to convey a musing mood. What he's actually done is to feature Bobby in the act of a maternal gasp.

What an ad that statue would be for a mouth wash!

NATURE'S REMEDY

BORAH TO HAVE AN EASY TIME RETAINING SEAT, IN CONTRAST TO OTHER PROGRESSIVE LEADERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator William E. Borah of Idaho may be as progressive as the next man.

Nevertheless the stand pat "intrusts" show no such anxiety to beat him for re-election as they do to defeat Senators George W. Norris of Nebraska and Thomas J. Walsh of Montana.

Norris and Walsh have hard campaigns on their hands. Borah seems unlikely to encounter any serious opposition, according to accounts from Pocatello, Boise and the Coeur d'Alene region.

Perhaps the Idaho senator has licked the forces of conservatism so often that they are too discouraged even to try to fight him. Still, if that's it, one would think they'd feel the same way about Senator Norris, in Nebraska. Evidently they don't. Norris has been licking them for more years than Borah has been doing it, and just as regularly, but his friends say the signs are that they are going to give "Uncle George" the tussle of his life.

They do not appear to be afraid of Senator Walsh, in Montana, either.

There is nothing partisan about the stand pat "intrusts." They have put a conservative Republican up against Senator Walsh, because Walsh is a progressive Democrat.

And in the Nebraska primaries they put a conservative Democrat up against Senator Norris, because "Uncle George" is a progressive Republican.

First, of course, the stand patters tried to beat "Uncle George" out of a re-nomination.

This brings up the story of the attempt to keep the senator off the Republican primary ticket by putting another George W. Norris name on it.

"Uncle George" admirers represented it as a dirty trick of the "intrusts," and probably really believed that that was what it was, but I doubt it somewhat. That is, I doubt whether it was the "intrusts' idea. It looked more like a parum-skurum, irresponsible stunt—malicious, maybe, but not well-planned, as it would have been if the "intrusts" had inspired it.

It will be recalled that "Uncle George's" rival for the Nebraska Republican senatorial nomination was a George W. Norris who had a job in a Broken Bow chain grocery store.

Two George W. Norrises on the G. O. P. primary ticket would have nullified each other, undeniably.

No Republican voter could have indicated, without invalidating his ballot, which George W. Norris he was voting for, and, without some such indication, the tellers could not have determined which one was meant.

The generally accepted explanation of Grover Norris' candidacy was that the "intrusts" had concocted the scheme to drive "Uncle George" into abandoning his fight for the Republican nomination and running as an independent, in order to identify himself.

This might have cost him some hard-and-fast Republican votes and thus injured him—or it might have helped him, by creating sympathy in his behalf.

It looks to me as if too uncertain an experiment for the intelligent

"intrusts" to have risked. Moreover, Grover Norris filed his name so late for the primary ticket, that the courts rejected it. When the super-efficient "intrusts" stoop to chicanery, they are better at it than they are.

Finally, why couldn't "Uncle George" have signed in full—George William—unless Grover Norris is George William also—which would be a decided coincidence.

No, no; the whole thing seems merely smartly—quite unlike the "intrusts."

If anything, it promises to turn out to "Uncle George's" advantage. He gets on the regular Republican ticket, anyway, the "intrusts" are sure to be blamed for trying to horns-waggle him, whether they do or not, and the probabilities are it will make him a lot of votes.

Some scandal, doubtless, would be helpful to Tom Walsh, out in Montana, in his duel with Justice Albert J. Galen, the "intrusts' candidate (according to the progressive version) in that neck of the woods.

All this fails to explain why Senator Borah's re-election appears to be so completely foregone a conclusion in Idaho—with hardly a contest in progress, from what little one is able to hear—with the senator recuperating, in fact, from his progressive activities here in Washington, at some rest cure up in Maine, while the campaign (such as it is) is on.

Aren't there any "intrusts" in Idaho?

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

LUNCHEON

Stuffed Tomato Salad
Pimento Cheese Sandwiches
Goose Liver Sandwiches
Fresh Berries Layer Cookies

ICE TEA DINNER

Baked White Fish, Ribbon Potatoes
Baked Stuffed Tomatoes
Stuffed Olives, Tiny Pickled Beets
Ginger Ale Salad
Parker House Rolls, Crabapple Jelly
Gooseberry Pie
Coffee

These menus are luncheon and dinner menus respectively, and planned with guests expected. All the items of both menus may be prepared ahead of time so that the actual time for preparing the meals will be slight.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Layer Cookies—First layer: One-half cup shortening, two eggs, one cup white sugar, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder. Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and vanilla. Last flour sifted with salt and baking powder. Spread one-quarter inch thick over shallow, greased pan. Second layer: One cup brown sugar, one egg white, one-half teaspoon vanilla, three-fourths cup chopped walnuts. Beat egg, fold in sugar. Add vanilla. Spread over the first layer. Sprinkle with walnuts. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven (325 degrees Fahrenheit). Cut in squares while still warm.

Ginger Ale Salad—Two tablespoons granulated gelatin, one-half cup water, two tablespoons sugar, five tablespoons lemon juice (strained), and one-half cup ginger ale, one sweet small orange, peeled and cut in small cubes, one cup canned pineapple, drained and diced, one-half cup celery hearts, diced, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one pimiento, diced lettuce and boiled salad dressing. Soften gelatin in water, add sugar and salt and set over boiling water until dissolved. Let cool thoroughly, add lemon juice and ginger ale. When beginning to "set" fold in orange, pineapple, celery and pimiento. Turn into individual molds which have been dipped in cold water, when thoroughly set turn onto a nest of crisp lettuce and serve with mayonnaise or good, piquant boiled salad dressing. Garnish with paprika or snips of pimiento.

SUGGESTIONS

Grinding Chocolate
When you are preparing chocolate for a devil's food it is quite a time saver to put the whole cake of chocolate through the food chopper. The remainder can be kept in a small jar until needed.

Sheets, tablecloths and napkins will iron much easier and the selvage edge will not stretch unevenly if when wringing these articles you gather the selvage edges in your hand and wring them in that position.

Adjust Food To Supply Body Needs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

There are five basic essentials of a normal diet:

1. Enough nutrition.
2. Enough protein and salts.
3. Fresh food. Life giving substances. Vitamins.
4. Enough water.
5. The food must be reasonably free from bacteria contamination, especially certain disease producing bacteria and parasites.

Let us study each of these requirements.

First, enough fuel or nutrition or energy. Your body is a kind of a machine. It requires energy to keep it going. The energy it requires is no different from any other kind of physical energy—heat, electricity. When a muscle lifts your leg in walking it does so by using up so much energy. This energy is obtained from burning food. Especially starches, sugars and fats. Proteins or animal foods, can, however, be used in this way.

So every diet must contain enough of these substances to keep the engine going. If no food is taken in for a time the body begins to attack its own substance and break it down. This can go on for a certain length of time only. Long starvation regimens advocated by extreme faddists are always dangerous.

How much energy do you need a day? It depends upon your age, weight and activities. Babe Ruth needs more than Mr. Hoover, because the Babe does ten or twenty times as much muscular work. A one-year-old child needs more than an old man of eighty. The baby's organism is keyed to a higher rate of expenditure of energy and it kicks around more and makes more unconscious movements. If they took the same number of steps Paul Whitehead would need more than Rudy Vallee because when Whitehead walks up a flight of stairs he pulls up nearly twice as much weight as Rudy Vallee.

Thus weight, age and activity, determine the amount of food you need.

The actual energy requirements of any person can be measured with great accuracy. The unit measurement is the calorie. A calorie is a certain amount of heat, a certain amount of energy. Many people have some difficulty in getting a clear mental picture of what a calorie is. Dr. Jolin has given us a definite picture of what you do when you use up one calorie.

A person weighing a hundred and fifty pounds, sitting in a chair, rises, closes the door and reseats himself. He has used up one calorie. On the average he uses up 2,400 of them a day.

What food amounts represent one calorie? One drop of cream is one calorie. Break an oblong soda cracker into four equal parts. Each is one calorie. The amount of granulated sugar you can get on the tip of a small after dinner coffee spoon is one calorie.

Watch Popular Youths

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Cheer up, girls! You are not the only ones who fail to attract the opposite sex. Boys have the same difficulty, as these letters prove:

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a young man of 23 and considered by the other fellows quite good looking. I have a good position and am able to spend money both on clothes and girls, yet I never met a girl who appeared to care for me after having two or three dates."

"I am polite and I try not to lose my girl friends, yet some thing is lacking about me, and I cannot decide just what it is."

"Will you tell me if it is my fault, or do you think it is just because I have not yet met the girl who is to be my mate?"

"Dear Virginia: I am well mannered, good looking and neat. I go with a nice bunch of fellows and girls, but do not have the satisfaction of having a certain girl as my friends do."

"Virginia, please tell me what the trouble can be. I confess that I try to be a good fellow and probably overdo it sometimes, but so do the other fellows. Please advise me. Sincerely,

"HERMAN F."

It's pretty hard to tell what the trouble is, boys, without seeing you. Maybe you are too sensitive, and when a girl is obliged to refuse one date—which sometimes happens even when she would like very much to accept—you decide she doesn't want to go with you, and don't ask her again.

Are you good talkers, interested in things that are going on? Do you read a good deal? Reading helps a man to be a good conversationalist. Watch the fellows who do seem to make a hit with the girls. What have they that you lack? If you can find nothing, and you still seem to be unpopular, experiment. Next time you take a girl out map out a program—adopt a line. Tell her she's the most understanding girl you were ever out with. Praise the color of her eyes, her hair, her voice, subtly, of course. Let your eyes tell more than your lips.

If that course fails use indifference. Adopt the attitude of a man slightly bored with women, making remarks from time to time that you will never marry. That you don't believe any girl living could make you want to give up your freedom.

If all this fails, don't give up hope, but write me again. There is no good reason why two such nice boys cannot have girls. It may be, of course, that you simply have not met the right ones and later you'll be mobbed by charming young ladies. If something happens that way, or maybe you have not asked the right ones.

"DEAR MISS LEE: I've read about different advice you have given on how to get and keep a sweetheart, but what I want to know is, how to get rid of one?"

"Some time ago I went with a boy I never really cared about, but I went with him just to keep from breaking up the gang."

"After I went a few times I decided he was the most unbearable human I ever knew. I asked him as nice as I knew how, not to come back any more, but he came anyway."

"He made himself so disgusting that I was so bold as to tell him that I had no respect for him whatever, and couldn't stand him. Well, he up and apologized four times. He is much younger than I am, but he says he looks old."

"Whatever can I do to keep him from hanging around?"

J. R."

Don't be at home when he calls. J. R., and if he does catch you, excuse yourself by saying you are busy. If he never has a chance to take you anywhere or talk to you, he will soon grow tired of coming around.

Wear Black Swim Suit If Weighty

By GLADYS GLAD

It is interesting to note the tail-end many women display in gowning themselves to obscure figure defects, or in wearing shades that enhance their natural coloring. And the beach is the place where such cleverness is taxed to its utmost.

Most women are aware that black, whether in gown or in bathing suit, lends a slimmness to the figure. But they do not realize that a black bathing suit will not efface the ugly lines of a person whose curves are of immense proportions. Moreover, the uncovered parts of the body seem twice their real size by mere contrast.

For the excessively fat figure, the one that hits the 200 pound mark, the two-piece black bathing suit is best. It should not be too close-fitting, and the pants should fit loosely.

True, this type of suit is not entirely up-to-date, but neither are women who permit themselves to carry around so much fat. Usually, however, such women are not young, and don't deem it necessary to be garbed in the height of fashion.

Really, decency demands this type of suit for the extremely fat figure. I have seen women who look actually presentable in such a suit, but who would look frightful in the regular one-piece suit.

Now for a word about color in bathing suits. The blondes should strive for contrast in their natural coloring and their beach attire. Let the brunettes wear those charming canary yellow and flaming orange suits. Let the dark blondes—and also the light blondes—use the red suits, red caps and slippers. Color, strikingly vivid, belongs to beach gear. Get it into your beach wardrobe.

And by all means, choose a color that won't look shabby, faded and soiled before the season is half finished.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Withdrawal of Company L's softball team from the American League is to be regretted. Undoubtedly the boys may have been discouraged because of the team's failure to win a single game but the guard unit should have finished out the season. Practically all the guardsmen were unfamiliar with the sport when the season began but improvement in their play was bound to come sooner or later. The old Phi Delta Kappa Fraternity team, if we remember correctly, did not win a game one season until its final contest, but the players probably got more fun out of the season than the other teams who won most of their games. There is one thing about losing games in softball. The members of the team get so they don't take defeat seriously whereas teams in the thick of the fight for the championship of a league take their losses to heart and this spoils a game.

Those Cincinnati Reds and Philadelphia Phillies are unique ball clubs. The Phillies, in last place, have the heaviest hitting team in the league with a team average of around .320, but averages disclose they are the worst defensive club and get the poorest pitching. The Reds are the best defensive team in the league and the most feeble hitting outfit. Here we have the best offensive and the best defensive clubs occupying eighth and seventh places, respectively, in the league.

Give the Phillies a little good pitching and they would be pennant contenders. They have the two best batters in the league in O'Doul and Klein, both of whom keep near the 400 mark. And still the team loses games consistently because of inefficient mound work.

At that the fan at Redland Field Sunday during the Cincinnati-Philadelphia double-header, hit the nail on the head when he made the remark that "any player who is able to stay in the American League even for only a year is good enough to play regularly for the Reds the rest of his natural days." He was a supporter of Bob Meusel, who absorbs plenty of razzing every time he steps to the plate to bat.

The observation was also made Sunday by a fan, after the Phillies had nosed out the Reds, 18 to 0, in the first game, that the Cincinnati team must have taken a correspondence school course in how to play baseball. If so, its diploma was probably lost in the mail.

The new E. Main St. midge golf links is proving popular among residents in that part of town. They say patrons have to wait in line to get on. Only nine holes have been completed but nine more holes will be added soon to make it a regulation eighteen-hole affair. Harve Thomas, handy man about the Gazette office, thinks it's a great game.

KIDS' MINIATURE LINKS BUILT

The "N. Galloway St. Gang," not to be outdone by the grown-ups, is building its own miniature golf course—and what a course it will be.

The hazards being installed run the gamut from tin cans and wash boards to corrugated cardboard and even an ice cream bucket with the bottom knocked out.

The "Gang" is composed of boys ranging in age from 13 years down to 5 and its members have been laboring industriously on the midge links for the last week.

Observations of amused residents in the vicinity indicate the course will be a nine-hole affair, being situated adjacent to an alley between Galloway and King Sts. near the extreme north end of Galloway.

The "Gang" is optimistic that the course will bring tremendous financial returns. Youngsters under the age of 6 years will be charged a penny to play the nine holes but the boys have raised the ante to three cents for adults.

Kansas "Dark Horse"

Frank Hancke, who upset all forecasts by winning the Kansas Republican gubernatorial nomination from Clyde Reed, the present incumbent. Hancke's margin of victory was about 35,000 votes.

SHARKEY - CARNERA BATTLE IN CHICAGO SEPTEMBER PROMISE

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Chicago, gateway to romance, may be the site of the greatest prize fight of this and several preceding years, according to negotiations that were rapidly coming to a show down today. The principals—Primo Carnera and Jack Sharkey, respectively bigger than anybody and better than anybody. The scene—Soldiers Field, where the finale of the Dempsey-Tunney dramas was enacted. The date—Monday, September 29. The distance—ten rounds to a decision. The gate—write your own ticket and don't spare the ink.

If this fight is made, it will carry no title, barring official recognition as heavyweight champion of the world, a distinction now enjoyed by the Herr Schmeling wildling prone upon the nape of his neck. If the fight is made—It virtually is made now. Carnera's bevy of managers and seconds and thirds have agreed to terms. The Sharkey people are coming into town tomorrow, ready to say it with fountain pens. They really are leveling, since Mique Malloy, propositioned the managers of twenty heavyweights by wire on a Carnera match and only one of them answered. His name is Johnny Buckley, manager of Sharkey.

Buckley explained that Sharkey was foot loose and disposed to step out with the first promoter who talked an intelligent prize fight. There is something of a moral obligation with Madison Square Garden, it seems, but of course a moral obligation is one of those things or maybe two of them. The Garden wants to make a Sharkey-Strickling fight for September but so far hasn't been able to figure a way of doing it without Sharkey. Having failed to make any progress under the Garden banner, it appears that he now wishes to do his falling elsewhere.

MERRIWELL FINISH BY HUSTON GIVES D. T. C. CLUB VICTORY

It was the last half of the ninth inning of a typical National League game between the Geyers and the Downtown Country Club at the athletic field Monday night. Runners occupied first and second bases but there were two out and the Downtowners were trailing by one run. Then "Sam" Huston, home run merchant of the team, strode to the plate and slammed a mighty blow to right center, the timely circuit swing giving the Downtowners a 11 to 9 victory after a bitter struggle. By virtue of the victory the D.

T. C. Club retained a mathematical chance to tie the Lang Chevrolet for the league title, but in any event ousted Geyers from the runner-up position in the standing. This heated battle, as is almost always the case when these two arch rivals get together, was filled with a variety of baseball, good and bad, plenty of hitting on both sides, ragged and brilliant fielding with feeling running high among the players.

The game was a see-saw affair, with first one team and then the other going into the lead.

Geyers counted a run in the first inning and another in the second with the Downtowners scoring once in the second. In the third Geyers assumed a commanding advantage by marking up four more runs but this lead collapsed entirely when the Country Club nine uncorked a six-run rally in the last of the third, making the score 7 to 6. Geyers went scoreless the next four stanzas while the Downtowners produced another run in the fifth. In the eighth a walk and three hits were good for three runs and put Geyers ahead once more, 9 to 8.

The stage was appropriately set for the winning rally of the Downtowners in the last of the ninth. With one down, McCurran and Farnum singled. Pardon forced McCurran at third but reliable Sam Huston broke up the game with a lory blow to right center that Yeakley partly blocked but could not hold.

Geyers amassed sixteen hits, all singles but one, and the Downtowners collected fifteen bingles, the homer by Huston being the only extra base blow. "Buildup" Smith, Geyer third baseman and the league's leading hitter, had a perfect day at bat, getting three singles and walking twice. Burnett and Fuller also got three hits apiece.

Jimmie McCurran, Downtown catcher, was the hitting star of the game, however, with four singles in five times up. "Bunnie" Pardon, manager of the team, played right field and proved a distinct asset to his team. He got on base four times, scored three runs and his single in the third round came with the bases full, driving in two runs. Bob Morton's shoe string catch of "Pop" Boxwell's bid for a homer in the fourth was the fielding feature.

Boxwell and Farnum were the opposing pitchers. Lineup: Geyers AB. R. H. Smith, 3b 3 2 3 Seall, 2b 5 1 1 Burnett, ss 5 1 3 Leopold, 1b 4 0 1 Yeakley, cf 5 2 2 P. Fuller, lf 4 1 3 Bottorff, rf 4 1 2 D. Murrell, c 4 0 0 P. Boxwell, p 4 1 1

GREENE COUNTY FORTUNATE IN DROUGHT SITUATION IS FOUND

Damage done to grain and forage crops in Greene County by the prolonged drought, while severe, is probably not as great as in many other agricultural sections in this part of the state, in the opinion of County Agent E. A. Drake.

The county agent is busily engaged obtaining information relative to the drought situation in this county as requested in telegrams from the United States secretary of agriculture; H. C. Ramsower, director of agricultural extension at Columbus, and Frank Hard, supervisor of the state conservation commission.

Declaring a preliminary survey has indicated the southern part of the county suffered most from lack of rainfall, Mr. Drake estimated that 15 per cent of the cattle, sheep and hogs, has been forced on the market by the drought and that actual prices being paid for livestock are 30 per cent less than normal. This, he said, is due to the unfinished condition of livestock, particularly lambs, and may be attributed to a scarcity of feed. Condition of livestock generally is held to be fair.

While there is also a shortage of good pasture, what exists has much substance and food value even if lacking in water, he asserted.

The county agent predicted the

AWARDED PRIZES

Miss Doris McCormick, N. King St., who appears to be gaining quite a reputation as an expert miniature golfer, captured the weekly prize in the feminine division for low score recorded last week over the Henrie Bros. course. Her score was 48 for which she received a small electric grill. Miss McCormick also won last week's prize for lowest score on the Bobby Lou Links. Harold Parrett, Russell Vannorsdall and Forest Galliger were tied with cards of 41 each for low score among the men on the Henrie course and in the play-off, Parrett won the $2.50 prize with a score of 45.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Unsettled in a small group of stocks of companies catering directly to the American farmer was the stock market's response today to the government's report showing a broad deterioration in corn and other food crops.

The shrinkage in the farmers' buying power caused by the burning up of the crops will in all probability be reflected in the reduction in the fall business of the mail-order houses and the makers of farm implements. At least this was Wall Street's deduction as the bears attempted again to crack the market by pouring in heavy selling orders in the forenoon. Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck declined to the low levels of the year and the high-priced specialties sold off a few points. Outside this small group no particular damage was done. Stock sales up to the noon period totaled only 700,000 shares, or at the rate or less than 2,000,000 for the full session. The rally in the specialty stocks, which forced Warner Brothers from its opening price of 24 1/2 to above 29, Vanadium to above 86 and United States Steel to above 160 was probable the result of short covering by the professionals, who had again committed the error of over-selling the short side of a dull market.

SPLASH She Swims to Conquer

By Eleanore Burnett Copyright, 1930, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST: Kitty Wilmot, secretary to Ellery Goss, is pursued by Atlee Wainwright, who hates Gordon Platt, Goss' confidential man, whom she assists in running down a "leak" in the office; Atlee makes violent love to Kitty who flees to Sally Ayers. Baby, Sally's small sister, has hysterics at what she says of Atlee. Kitty meets Boss Kelliher, at a party given by Hilda, blond phone operator, overhears a cryptic conversation and with difficulty escapes Kelliher's escort. On her steps a note is delivered which asks her to a secret breakfast with Gordon Platt. At Platt's request she gets to know Hattie Bridges, another of Goss' secretaries. At her house she is surprised to see Baby Ayers in company with Mrs. Bridges' bond salesman nephew—evidently there is a connection between Sally Ayers, Bridges and the stock market.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER 16 Excitedly Kitty waited for the entry of the unknown man who had been with Baby Ayers. Hattie Bridges had obtained her job at the same time that Kitty did; only through Kitty's quick wit had she managed to land it. Kitty has always supposed Hattie outside her circle of friends. But Baby Ayers knew Mrs. Bridges' nephew! Patty Hemming, stock broker, knew Baby and Sally. Sally worked for Ellery Goss! What could be Hattie Bridges' part in the leak? Could it be possible that Sally was concerned? Were Sally and Atlee together in the secret making of illicit profits? If Hattie Bridges had been "planted" to get secret information, what had happened to make Sally and Atlee feel that it could no longer come through them?

It was all a puzzle that didn't make sense! Sally couldn't be a crook! Kitty didn't believe it of Atlee, either, in spite of his outrageous conduct. Baby knowing Hattie Bridges' nephew was just a coincidence! All this in a flash, between his knock and his entry. But then Kitty had the surprise of her life! His appearance carried out what Mrs. Bridges had said of him; he looked like a gentleman, a good fellow, a kindly, honest man. But Kitty was learning to distrust her first judgments. She had thought all that of Atlee, too! Mrs. Bridges introduced them: "My nephew, Joe Fortune, Miss Wilmot."

"Wilmot? Wilmot? Is this Miss Kitty Wilmot?" "Why, yes!" answered Kitty. How could the man know her name? "Well, this is luck!" cried Mr. Fortune. "Been hopin' to meet you for weeks! Darling child, if you're game we'll give 'th' Queen th' surprise of her career!"

You mustn't mind Joe's talk!" put in Mrs. Bridges. "He always like that. Joe who is this the Queen you are forever talking about?" Kitty looked from one to the other, nonplussed. "Don't you wish you knew!" he was obviously teasing. "When th' Queen says 'Joe, let's get married,' I'll tell you! But not before! But Kitty, here—she knows th' Queen! It's th' Queen who wrote me all about her human fish, her pretty divin' Venus. But don't you tell Auntie, here! She'd be goin' straight away to th' Queen an' tell 'n' her if she didn't marry old Joe she'd have her arrested or something!"

Light dawned on Kitty. Queer, yet it must be true—this was Sally's Joe, who had been away so long—then Sally must be the Queen. Of course he knew Baby! Why not? Then it was all a mare's nest—this connection between Hattie Bridges and Patty Hemming and Atlee and Sally, through Baby—most natural thing in the world. Kitty didn't know whether to be relieved or sorry. It was devilish that Gordon Platt should have managed to make her even momentarily suspicious of her friends! She felt very much better over the fibs she had told him. Womanlike this made her feel kindly toward Joe Fortune.

"I can't guess!" she smiled at him. "So I couldn't tell if I wanted to." They chatted for awhile, then Kitty said she must go. Nothing would do but Joe must see her home, which he did, in a taxi. "Fancy meeting you at Aunt Hattie's!" he cried as soon as they were started. "Sally is wild about you, girlie! Let's go there! We'll go in, intimate friends. Tell you what, let me carry you in! Or walk in with my arm around you—Oh, don't worry! I'm harmless! I'm mad in the head about th' Queen! I'd rather marry her than be president! But she won't see me. I'd love to tease her a bit—that you say?" Kitty laid her hand on his arm. "Joe, you hang to it!" she told him, and her use of his name was so natural neither noticed it as odd. "Sally needs a man! She's all loving protection for Baby. She worries about her. She works too hard and she—she ought to have a man to lean on!"

"Ain't you th' comfortin' sister!" cried Joe. "Sure she's crazy about you for cause! I am, myself! Put in th' good word for me, then. But let's go an' surprise her—" Kitty declined. She didn't want to meet Atlee there. Meet him with love for Sally, strong for all Sally's friends and overjoyed at being back in New York, where he could see her again.

Kitty held a long and serious consultation with herself after she arrived home. She laid all her cards on the table and stared at them. Then in shorthand she wrote down the facts as she knew them. There is a want in the office. Possible sources: Sally, who knows the books; Bridges, who knows the business; Bridges, who takes the confidential letters I do not; Edith, queen of the files; Hilda, through whose hands—and—pass all the telephone messages of the office.

Reason for suspecting Sally and Atlee—none, except that both know Patty Hemming, a stock broker, about whom Gordon Platt had asked. Reason for suspecting Hattie Bridges—her nephew, Joe, who sells stock and bonds, knows Sally, Atlee and Baby. But Hattie only recently came with the firm. Letters dictated to Bridges must be uncalled for source of sure tips on the stock market, what?

Reason for suspecting Hilda—her connection with Kelliher, the three men who asked Kitty queer questions. No reason. Reason for suspecting Edith—none, outside of opportunity. Reason for suspecting Atlee—his unexplained hatred of Platt, and the same reasons which might, but didn't apply to Sally.

"So much for so much!" Kitty said to herself, tearing up her notes in fine pieces as soon as they were finished. "Now let's be honest about Atlee and Gordon. I like them both; a lot. Atlee is beautiful to look at; Gordon is—Oh, he's a man! I've been warned against him. Atlee hates him. But it was Atlee, not Gordon, who laid violent hands on me," she blushed.

"One or the other—maybe both of them—may ask me to marry them, eventually!" Kitty was trying to be honest with herself. She reddened a little at her apparent self-praise. "I love Sally. I like Bert Croydon and I want to like Baby, if she'll let me. I can't see anything wrong with Patty Hemming! I like my friends!"

"Gordon distrusts some of them. If one of them is a chief—Gordon said stealing Mr. Goss' profits was as bad as stealing cash—then I want to know it. And—and—" This time there was no doubt of the blush. "I want to stand well in Gordon's eyes. I'd like him to be pleased with me! I want him to swim with me! I want him to like me—a lot! I—I—" But here she shook her head to herself. "Now don't be foolish! I've admonished her dimpled image in her mirror."

"I just can't go on like this!" she said the words aloud. "I've got to know! I can't stand liking people and not knowing whether they are crooks or decent people! I don't believe it of Atlee or Patty or great, big, beautiful, gorgeous Sally! But I've got to stand by Gordon—I've given my word—Oh, I have, even if he did take it for granted! I lied to him. He trusted me, and I lied to him."

"Very well, then! I've been half hearted about this I've not really done anything. I've just pretended to look and listen and report. I've not told him what I really know, because I didn't want to make him suspect my friends, when I know they are innocent! That's why my conscience hurts me!"

"So from now on, Kitty Wilmot, you are going to hew to the line and do some real detective work! I don't really know anything about their contest is the power trust. In Ohio, Senator Roscoe McCulloch (R) has no opposition for re-nomination. There are five candidates in the Democratic primary, vying for the chance to oppose McCulloch next November. Their race appears to lie between W. W. Burbin, veteran party worker, Rep. John McSwainey, a young legionnaire, and former Rep. Robert J. Bulky, of Cleveland.

The fight of Norris overshadows the rest in national opinion. He is opposed by W. M. Stebbins, a Republican regular. The veteran insurgent leader is standing for re-nomination on his record and the regulars in Nebraska have assailed that record from a to iazzard.

This record however will not be opposed by the Republican national committee if Norris wins a re-nomination. Senator Fess, the new national chairman, announced that the committee's duty was to "elect, not select senatorial candidates." Fess said the committee would support Norris next November, regardless of his insurgency in the last presidential campaign or on legislation.

The Nebraska Democrats are having a battle of their own to choose an opponent for Norris or Stebbins. The voters go to the polls, former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock appears the favorite. He will make a formidable candidate next November, although he lost his seat in an off-year.

In all four states, the voters will choose party state tickets. The interest however will lay in the outcome of the senatorial contests.

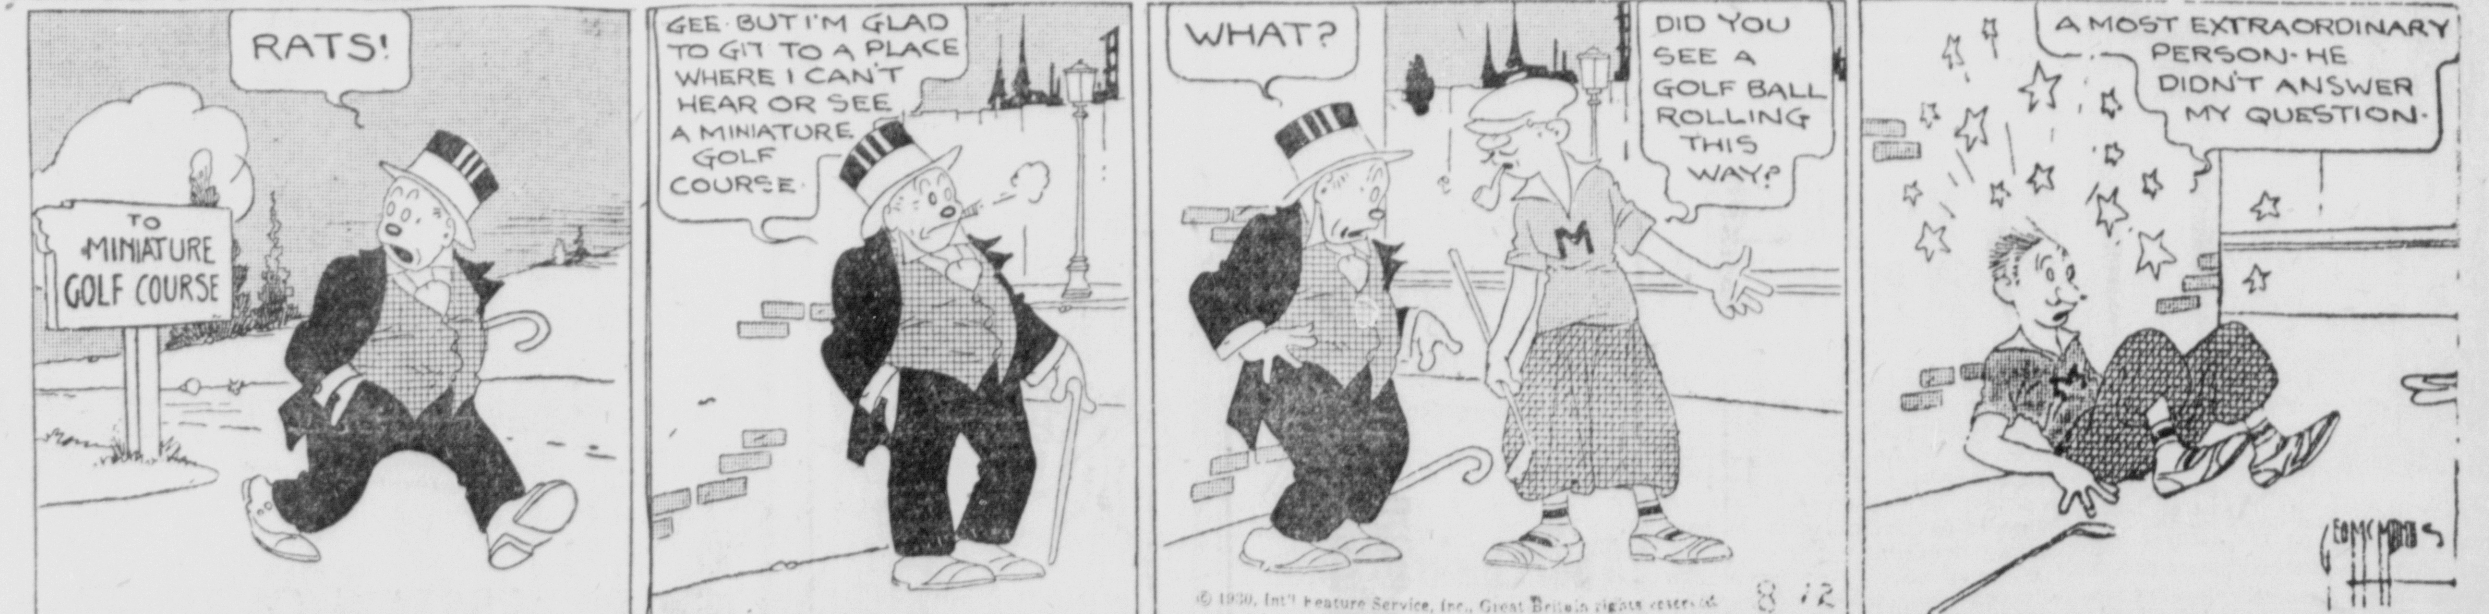

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 12.—Oklahoma Democrats went to the polls today in a run-off primary to decide the Democratic candidates for the United States senate and governor.

The main contest appears to be between Thomas P. Gore, blind and an ex-senator, and C. G. Wrightsman, oil millionaire of Tulsa, for the senatorial nomination.

In the first primary Gore and Wrightsman ran a neck-and-neck race far ahead of their competitors.

William H. Murray, known as "Alfalfa Bill," was a stand-out for the gubernatorial nomination over Frank Buttram, another oil millionaire.

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Theater

David P. Sentner, this column's New York correspondent, writes that the coming New York theater season is going to be politely wicked and that sex will be worn a few inches higher along Broadway if the opening play of the new season, "Ladies All," may serve as an indicator.

Interpreted by Elmer Harris, screen adaptation and Irving Cummings will direct. The blonde Carol Lombardo will have a siren role in the talkie and Frederick Kerr is to be the heavy. He also appeared in Colman's last picture, "Raffles."

Though he has never been able to make a comeback as an actor, Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle has found a place in the talkies. He is directing Lloyd Hamilton comedies for Educational Films. Previous to his present occupation he was comedy constructor for "The Cuckoos" at R-K-O.

Robert Woolsey, one of the stars of "The Cuckoos" was in the chemical department of the U. S. Army during the world war.

Total expenditures for July for Greene County Chapter, American Red Cross, amounted to $446.87, according to the monthly report compiled by Miss Emma F. Lyon, executive secretary of the local chapter. Other details of the report are as follows:

Office interviews with applicants in person, 112; by phone, four; office interviews with consultants in person, sixty-two; by phone, seventy-two; calls made on applicants in person, twenty-one; by phone, twelve; calls made in behalf of applicants in person, forty-five; by phone, sixty-eight; letters received, sixty-three; letters sent out, fifty-eight; relief in families, numbering eighty-seven; co-operating agencies, fifteen;

Soldier cases brought forward this month, sixteen; civilian cases brought forward this month, sixty-eight; new and re-opened soldier cases, five; new and re-opened civilian cases, eight; soldier cases closed, six; civilian cases closed, thirteen; soldier cases open at end of month, fifteen; civilian cases open at end of month, sixty-three; soldier cases acted on during month, eight; civilian cases acted on during month, seventy-six.

The organization assisted one ex-serviceman in obtaining a loan on his federal adjusted compensation; served in four families with children in the county where the wage earner was out of work. Twenty-three families were supplied with clothes, hats and shoes for adults and children from the supply closet. Food was supplied in sixteen families where men were out of work; three families where there was illness; two families where men were disabled to such an extent that they could not provide for their families; also six widows with large families were supplied with food.

Milk was sent every day to a tubercular patient and also a large family of children. Meals were provided for four men; two transients were supplied with clothing from the supply closet. A layette was provided for one mother by the organization. Six tonsilectomies were performed by Drs. Madden and Shields in behalf of the organization, on two children living in the county and four in Xenia. Medicine was purchased by the organization for two clients who were ill and unemployed at the time. Two children of city clients were given dental attention by Dr. A. B. Kester in co-operation with the organization.

One man who was stranded in the city overnight, with his family was given food by the organization. One transient and his wife who were stranded in the city were materially aided by the organization, which also assisted a runaway girl who was stranded and in a destitute condition in Cedarville, to return to her home in Norfolk, Va.

The organization cooperated with the following outside agencies in its work during the month: the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, Cincinnati and Washington offices; American Red Cross, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind.; clerk of the county court, Payettesville, Tenn.; American Red Cross, Norfolk, Va.; department of public welfare, Columbus and Associated Charities, Cincinnati.

The organization appreciated the cooperation of the following individuals in its work during the past month: Drs. Madden and Shields, Dr. W. T. Ungard, Dr. A. B. Kester, Mrs. Steele Poague, Miss Anna Morrow, Mrs. Anna Kelble, Sheriff Ohmer Tate, Mrs. O. H. McDonald, Mrs. Harry Whitmer, Mrs. Willard Bennington, Mrs. L. S. Hyman, Mrs. Karl Babb, Mrs. Earl Short, Mrs. Ralph Weaver and Mrs. Josephine Craig.

WIFE PLEADS FOR DIVORCE; TWO NOTE SUITS FILED HERE

Restoration to her maiden name is sought by Dorothy Cavender in a suit for divorce from Paul Cavender, filed in Common Pleas Court. The plaintiff charges gross neglect of duty. They were married October 11, 1929.

INSURANCE FIRM SUES
Two suits, seeking recovery of a total of $21,245.67, alleged due on notes, have been filed in Common Pleas Court by The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., Milwaukee, Wis., against Bennett Myers. One suit is for $12,472.51 and the other asks $8,773.16. Foreclosure of mortgaged property is sought and the Commercial and Savings Bank, Xenia, claimed an interest in the property, is named co-defendant. F. L. Bush is attorney for the insurance company.

NOTE SUIT FILED
Suit for $111.25, alleged due on a promissory note, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by G. B. Levalley against Levi Smith and Adda L. Smith. Attorney W. A. Paxson represents the plaintiff.

DIVORCE OBTAINED
On grounds of extreme cruelty William T. Bayles has obtained a divorce from Scota Bayles in Common Pleas Court and has been awarded custody of their children, Dorothy and Irene, with the defendant retaining the right to visit them at reasonable intervals.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDANT

A jury in Common Pleas Court returned a verdict favoring the plaintiff in the suit of George W. Daffern against A. K. Frederick, the case having been appealed from the court of S. H. Pierce, Bath Twp., justice of the peace.

WINS JUDGMENT

Mrs. Nettie Slanker has been awarded a cognovit note judgment for $218.59 against Paul Schmitt and Margaret Schmitt in Common Pleas Court.

NAMED ADMINISTRATRIX

Lesta M. Stephens has been appointed administratrix of the estate of Charles E. Spahr, late of Ross Twp., with bond of $1,000 in Probate Court. Otis Tobin, Clint Morrow and William Baker were named appraisers.

TO DISTRIBUTE ASSETS

Application of Casper B. Harner, as executor of the estate of D. S. Harner, deceased, to distribute certain assets of the estate, has been approved in Probate Court since all debts and the inheritance tax have been fully paid and the proposed distribution is satisfactory to all legatees and devisees under the will.

ESTATE VALUELESS

Estate of Ellen Alexander, deceased, is without net value, according to an entry filed in Probate Court. The gross value is placed at $1,300 but debts and the cost of administration jointly amount to $1,545.68.

AUTHORIZE PUBLIC SALE

Public sale of property re-appraised at $3,000 has been authorized in the case of Nellie Bunch, as executrix of the estate of Susan Mullen, deceased, against John Zellner, Sr., and others in Probate Court. Attempts to sell the property at both public and private sale failed because no bid was received equal to two-thirds of the appraised value. The court then ordered a re-appraisal.

EXTENSION GRANTED

William W. Hyslop, as executor of the estate of Eliza A. Hyslop Carruthers, deceased, has been granted a six-months extension of additional time for filing his account because of litigation now pending in Common Pleas Court making a distribution impossible until the litigation is settled.

ORDER SALE

Private sale of land has been authorized in Probate Court in the case of O. B. Kaufman, as guardian of Amos Harner, against the ward and others. The guardian's bond of $800 was approved by the court.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Stephen G. Phillips, Xenia, starting judge, and Jane M. Bell, 4 E. Second St., this city.

Carroll Gleendon Berryhill, Bellbrook, mechanic, and Nellie Mae Fawcett, Sugar Creek Twp. Rev. W. H. Tilford.

Blue Smackover
Near the Ouachita River in Southern Arkansas there is a little town called Smackover—a name now world famous because of the Crude Oils this field produces. These Crudes contain a high natural content of the so called aromatics naphthenes and unsaturates petroleum compounds which produces the desired anti-knock quality. This unusual gasoline COMBINES IN ONE MOTOR FUEL every desirable quality required by high compression motors and in addition contains the same quick starting and smooth operating characteristics that have popularized High Test Gasoline. The great power found in Smackover accounts not only for its remarkable anti-knock performance but likewise is responsible for considerably higher mileage yields per gallon.

Food Price News
A&P stores will keep you posted
There is no lack of good food for everyone these days, and—if you know where to look for it—it is cheaper than at any time since the Great War put prices up.
Try any A & P store. You will find what you want at the latest low prices. A & P has so many customers that it keeps nothing long at old prices. Everything it offers is new at new prices.
In other words, as fast as producers lower their prices to A & P, A & P lowers its prices to consumers, content always with its small margin of profit—2½ cents in the dollar.
So even if for any reason you do not buy at A & P stores, use them to keep you posted on good food prices. There you will get the latest reliable news of what you should pay.
